FROM THE UTAH ARMY.

Later From the Military Expedition in Utah.

The Weather—Proceedings in the Camp—Indictments for Treason—Miscellaneous.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Camp Scott, Green River County, Utah Territory, Saturday, Feb. 13, 1858.

The mail from the States has at length reached us in our exile, and the brow of care and anxiety is relaxed, the fatigue of military discipline and exposure is forgotten, and even the hollow mirth at the wine glass and the heart-corroding excitement of the gaming table are thrown off, and all hearts are softened with thoughts of home, of absent friends. The faces of many brighten, and though the tear sparkles in the eye, there is a smile radiant o'er the countenance; the breasts of many heave convulsively, and the countenance is almost distorted by the scarce-repressed emotion, which would burst the fetters with which it is bound in forced composure. It is a great event in our camp, this arrival of the mail.

It was the mails which left the States on the 1st of December and the 1st of January that arrived here on the 8th inst. They brought us dates from St. Louis up to the 25th of December, and contained most interesting news to us concerning the commercial crisis, the Indian war, the meeting of Congress, but more especially the Utah war. From what we can glean from the papers, the public are extremely well informed concerning our movements and position. The impression, however, seemed to be that the troops would suffer this Winter; and I am very glad that subsequent letters have informed the public that we have thus far spent the Winter in comparative comfort.

The feeling of intense abhorrence which the conduct of the Mormons has excited against themselves throughout the Union, leads us to fear that, bound down as we are by the strict discipline of military rule and responsibility, we will have to suffer the extreme disappointment of hearing ere long that Salt Lake City has been taken possession of by volunteers from the West, whilst we are compelled to remain during the Winter within 110 miles of that stronghold which it has been our ambition to conquer without further assistance. But though man wills—God rules. Undoubtedly the plan of sending large bodies of troops from all sides upon the centre of the Mormon empire will not only save an immense sacrifice of human life, but will at the same time surely meet the ends of justice by bringing the guilty ones to punishment and saving the innocent.

Fears are entertained by many that there will be a change in the command of this division of the Army by next Spring. This we sincerely hope is not the case, although perhaps the majority of our young officers and men were in favor of continuing the march upon Salt Lake City last Fall, at all hazards; yet reflection points out the fearful responsibility which a commander would take upon himself in leading a small band of men (on foot, and without animals to transport subsistence even for a few days) over rugged, snow-clad mountains, which nature has fortified in an almost impregnable manner, into the heart of the enemy's country. This, too, in the face of certain defeat, for a victory gained under these circumstances would have been more disastrous than a defeat; as famine would secure for its victims those whom the sword of the enemy had spared. Colonel Johnston deserves commendation in the course which sacrificed military fame and ambition for the sake of humanity.

We are now awaiting with interest the arrival of information concerning the action of Congress in regard to this Territory. It is sincerely to be hoped that the proposal made by Senator Douglas, in his Springfield speech, of repealing the organic act, will not be adopted. Without taking into consideration the serious consequences which might arise in the future from such a precedent, it is evident that by removing from this Territory all local Government, it would, instead of subserving the ends of justice, so delay and cripple its movements as to destroy the very foundation of its success in preserving law and order and protecting the lives and property of honest citizens. It could not certainly be expected that martial law would be proposed, for the genius of our institutions, the very spirit and letter of the Constitution most certainly forbid the supremacy of the military over the civil authority; and it will indeed be a sad day in the annals of our Republic when civil jurisdiction fails to accomplish its purpose, and it becomes necessary to declare martial law over so large a number of citizens and over such an extent of our domain. Thank Heaven, that day has not yet arrived. We are able to establish a civil Government in this Territory, and although, under the freedom guaranteed by the institutions of our country, traitors have debased and prostituted in this land the fairest features of our Government; yet, there are materials even now, in this Territory sufficient to reëstablish the supremacy and sovereignty of the law, and to restore to honest men those inalienable rights of which they were deprived of in this country by a presumptuous and unparalleled usurpation of power.

The United States District Court for this county, Chief-Justice Eckels presiding, met on the 1st of February at the Court-house in Eckelsville, pursuant to adjournment at the regular December Term, on the 6th day of January last. It was in session but three days, there being but one case for trial, and it adjourned until the first Monday in March. Just before the close of the regular December Term of this Court, the United States Grand Jury found an indictment against all the members of the Utah Legislature, in consequence of the treasonable resolutions passed and published by them. As many of these men (who are the leaders of the Mormon rebellion) have been known in different sections of the Union, I have procured from the Clerk of the Court the following list of the names included in the indictment. I omit sending the whole document, as it is too lengthy for publication:

F. D. Richards,
Wilford Woodruff,
Joseph Holbrook,
Lorenzo Snow,
Lorin Farr,
Benjamin F. Johnston,
L. E. Harrington,
Warren S. Snow,
Lewis Brunson,
George A. Smith,
W. W. Phelps,
A. P. Rockwood,
J. C. Little,
Daniel Spencer,
Alexander McRae,
Orson Hyde,
J. W. Cummings,
Hosea Stout,
Joseph A. Young,
H. B. Clawson,
John Rowberry,
John D. Parker,
Reddick N. Allred,
Jonathan C. Wright,
Aaron Johnston,
James C. Snow,
Preston Thomas,
Jacob G. Bigler,
George Peacock,
P. T. Farnsworth,
Isaac C. Haight,
John D. Lee,
Isaac Bullock,
Leo Hawkins,
John T. Caine,
Samuel L. Sprague,
John Sharp,
Cyrus H. Wheelock,
Patrick Lynch,
Wm. H. Kimball,
Brigham Young, Jr.,
William Derr,
Jesse Haven,
William Maxwell,
Joseph Simmons,
Nathaniel Thompson,
Chauncey W. West.

In order that the list may be complete, I also give below the names of those who were included in the first indictment for treason, preferred by the Grand Jury against the Mormons:

Brigham Young,
Heber C. Kimball,
Daniel H. Wells,
John Taylor,
George D. Grant,
Lot Smith,
Porter Rockwell,
William A. Hickman,
Albert Carrington,
Joseph Taylor,
William Stowell,
Lewis Robinson,
Joshua Terrell,
John Harvey,
Daniel Jones,
Phineas Young,
William Young,
Robert Burton,
James Ferguson,
Ephraim Hanks.

Joseph Taylor and William Stowell, the one a colonel, the other an adjutant in the Mormon army, who are included in this last list, were taken prisoners on Ham's Fork in October last, the circumstances of which appeared in my communication of the 28th of that month. They were confined in the custody of the guard of the 10th Infantry. Taylor, however, escaped from the guard on the night of the 7th of November, and, had fortune favored him, Stowell would also now be at liberty, for on the evening of the 30th of January he made his escape from the guard in company with a corporal who had been broken by a court-martial for some offence, and who was in confinement with Stowell. Much to our surprise, however, they both returned and gave themselves up to the guard on the 3d of February. It appears that they succeeded, after eluding the search of the guard for them, in making their way to Smith's Fork, a creek some four miles from the one on which we are camped, (Black's Fork;) they then followed up this stream towards the mountains in the hope of meeting some Mormon scouting parties from whom they could obtain assistance; in this they were disappointed and without blankets, matches, nor any sort of arms or ammunition they came near perishing in the deep snows of the mountains, and therefore concluded finally that it was better to run the risk of hanging than to starve to death, and returned. Stowell's feet were so badly frost-bitten that he could scarcely walk.

Nathaniel Thompson, who is included in the last indictment, and who has been in confinement since last December, has demanded a trial at the next session of the Court. It remains with the United States Attorney to decide whether the case shall be prosecuted. If it should, I am informed that there is evidence sufficient to connect him with the treasonable combination against the United States, and he will, undoubtedly, suffer the penalty of treason.

The Governor, on the 3d inst., commissioned David A. Burr, Esq., of Washington City, Justice of the Peace for this County, and Chief-Justice Eckels has appointed the same gentleman United States Commissioner for the Northern Judicial District of this Territory. This appointment has filled a vacancy which the Executive have felt the need of very much, as there has been no inferior tribunal for the adjudication of the numerous petty offences which, although it is essential to the peace of the community should be punished, yet are not of a nature to come before a superior Court.

I am told by a gentleman who has just arrived from Henry's Fork, where the animals of the command have been kept during the Winter, that they are in excellent condition. The dragoon and artillery horses are improving beyond all expectation, and are now really fat. There is no snow on Henry's Fork.

The health of the command has been excellent during the Winter. There has been but three deaths, and these were from the effects of diseases contracted elsewhere.

The weather thus far has not been severe, for although the temperature has been quite low, yet its freedom from sudden changes, and the extreme rarity of the atmosphere, prevent the cold from being felt as it would be in a much lower temperature in the climate of the Eastern States.

We have during this month, however, been visited with a succession of high winds from the west and northwest, accompanied by slight falls of snow. The snow is now about one inch deep in this bottom. It is an interesting meteorological fact, which has been communicated to me by a gentleman who is a close observer, that the course of the higher clouds has been during this Winter almost invariably from the west and northwest, to the east and southeast.

The case of McCarty against Hines, Briggs and Shay, for the assault committed on McCarty, at the corner of Howard-street and Broadway, on the evening of March 24, came again before Recorder Barnard yesterday. At the previous examination it will be remembered that the testimony of Mr. Racey (who made the affidavit in the case) and of McCarty himself, whose features bore evidence of a foul attack, sustained an allegation against Marcus Cicero Stanley for hiring the defendants to make the assault against McCarty. So far the allegation has not been sustained. Yesterday, Mr. C. H. Jones, keeper of a liquor-store at No. 428 Broadway, was examined for the defence. His testimony was of an indefinite character. He saw the fight, but could not say who commenced it, though his evidence tended to exculpate Mr. Shay from any participation therein. Ex-Judge Phillips, who appeared for the defence, moved for Shay's discharge. Dr. S. C. Johnson was also examined for the defence. His evidence was of a negative character. He did not see McCarty kicked in the gutter, or anybody endeavoring to promote the fight. Henrietta Smith, a colored woman, deposed that Briggs did not take any part in the affray, but that he tried to stop the fight. The Recorder discharged Shay, but held Hines and Briggs to answer.

Last evening the annual meeting was called and held at Military Hall, No. 193 Bowery, of the survivors of the 6,000 American prisoners of the war of 1812, in the British prison of Dartmoor. Scarcely a dozen are known to be living in this locality; of these only three were present—Messrs. Lewis Clover, Col. Hardenbrook, of the Brooklyn Veteran Corps, and Mr. Sewell Howard. What the meeting wanted in numbers, was amply compensated by the warmest manifestations of patriotic and fraternal feeling. It is thought that not 300 are now living who represent the 6,000 immured within those walls when the deadly fire of the soldiery struck down, killed and wounded, nearly seventy of their brave compatriots, falsely accused of an attempt to escape. Mr. Charles King (brother of the Governor of the State) was one of the Commissioners who signed the report of the inquiry which the speakers thought too lightly exculpated the military governor of the prison for his hasty conduct in his attack on the unoffending prisoners on that memorable day, the 6th of April, 1815, when the peace of Ghent was already signed.

An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner Hills upon the body of Patrick Donahue, a dirt carman, who was found dead on the fourth floor of the tenement house No. 285 West Thirty-second-street. Suspicions of foul play were at first entertained, but a post mortem examination showed that the man came to his death from congestion of the brain. He was a native of Ireland, and only 23 years of age.

The Board of Education at its meeting this evening will elect a City Superintendent to hold office for two years from June next. Hon. S. S. Randall, the present incumbent, is the only candidate spoken of in connection with the office, and will doubtless be unanimously reëlected for the third time.

Herr Switch, an Austrian, was caught yesterday afternoon in the apartments of Bridget Dunn, No. 150 West Thirty-second-street, which he had entered for purposes of theft. Justice Quackenbush locked him up.

There was a "surprise party" at Herron's Eastern Hotel, Whitehall-street, on Monday evening, in honor of the wife of Ex-Councilman Henry Smith. Ladies and gentlemen from all the neighboring cities were present, and all spent a very pleasant evening ☞ General Persifer F. Smith is to leave Washington to-day, preparatory to taking command of the army of Utah.

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

No Commissioners to be sent to Utah—Defeat of the Administration on the Deficiency Bill—The New Regiments—The Kansas Bill—Colonel Benton's Illness—Senator Davis, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Washington, Tuesday, April 6.

A high official, having intimate relations with the President, assures me that there is not a particle of foundation for the report that Commissioners are to go to Utah to negotiate with Brigham Young.

The Administration sustained a severe defeat to-day on the Deficiency bill, which is considered essentially beaten. The War Department are reduced to the most desperate straits thereby, there being not a cent in the Treasury belonging to it, while there are unpaid drafts upon it to the amount of over four hundred thousand dollars, with more coming in by every mail. The new regiments cannot be called out unless the money is granted.

There is a great pressure on the President with regard to the new regiments. He decided to-day against Pennsylvania, and personally inclines to take Kentucky and Ohio Volunteers, and to oppose the appropriations unless they are accepted.

The Senate has got into a terrible snarl over the retention of the Kansas bill, the object being to delay it until votes are gained in the House to carry it. It will be sent to the House to-morrow, but the vote will be delayed, if possible, until the Administration leaders feel sure of success. There are loud complaints by leading Democrats of bad management, as well on this as on the Army and Deficiency bills.

The Willett's Point Committee have granted Collector Schell a respite until next week, in consideration of the pressing nature of his business with the Administration.

The Committee on the Library, to whom was referred the disposition of the $25,000 appropriated for a work of art by Hiram Powers, for the Capitol, have concluded to divide it, and to order the execution of two statues of eminent characters of the Revolution. Marion and Greene are suggested.

Mr. Buchanan has possession of the original of Gov. Chase's letter desiring the acceptance of the Lecompton Constitution.

There is a rumor that McKibben, the Navy Agent at Philadelphia, father of the California member of the House, will be removed. O.

[FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT.]

Colonel Benton is declining, but still working. He cannot rise again, but devotes some hours every day to his last work, asking only time to finish it. He speaks of his approaching end with heroic equanimity. It is proposed that Congress purchase an edition of his abridgement for the use of the Government.

If negotiations for more votes in the House fail, the Senate will adopt the Crittenden amendment, striking out the clause directing the President to proclaim the State in the Union, and substitute a provision bringing the Constitution before Congress for confirmation. A.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Tuesday, April 6.

Judging from present indications, the Deficiency Appropriation bill, embracing about eight millions for the Army, will be defeated in its present form. There is an increasing disposition in Congress to check further movements of the Utah Expedition. The entire military force contemplated to be thrown into Utah is about 5,600 men.

Senator Davis' physical condition has become more critical. He has lost the sight of one eye.

XXXVth CONGRESS......First Session.

SENATE.... Washington, Tuesday, April 6.

Mr. Bigler, of Pennsylvania, presented from Amos Kendall, Chairman, etc., a supplementary memorial asking further protection against competing Telegraph Companies.

The business of the Senate to-day, although it occupied a long time, can be expressed in a few words.

Mr. Slidell, of Louisiana, having filed with the Secretary on Friday last a written declaration that he intended to move to reconsider the vote to disagree with the House on the Kansas bill, which motion yesterday and to-day he renewed verbally without any action being taken, claimed the right to keep the bill back three days for that purpose.

Mr. Stuart, of Michigan, moved to enforce the order of the Senate that no single Senator shall have the power to thus obstruct business.

Mr. Slidell referred to the rule and insisted on his right.

Mr. Bayard explained the custom in such cases, expressing the opinion that it must be left in the discretion of the officer.

Mr. Douglas could not recognize as a right what was a matter of courtesy.

The presiding officer explained that he had asked opinions.

Some skilful parliamentary fencing was exhibited in favor of, and against, the interpretation of the rule in the Manual under which Mr. Slidell claimed, not as a courtesy, but a right, the three days' retention of the Kansas non concurrence, to allow him to reconsider his vote.

The presiding officer (Mr. Fitzpatrick) assumed the responsibility of a decision for it.

Mr. Crittenden and others testified that they had never known a previous instance.

Finally the matter was laid on the table, without action. This answered the purpose of the Administration men.

The bill for the admission of Minnesota came up as the special order.

Previous to the discussion, Mr. Fitch, of Indiana, read an extract from the Globe confirmatory of the words exchanged between him and Mr. Douglas yesterday, implying a lukewarmness on the part of the latter in regard to Minnesota.

Mr. Douglas warmly replied, asserting his zeal in the cause of Minnesota.

The matter was of trifling import, but flat contradictions were interchanged.

Mr. Green, of Missouri, confirmed Mr. Douglas' statement, and the matter subsided.

Mr. Pugh, of Ohio, moved an amendment to the preamble of the Minnesota bill, and appealed to Mr. Douglas to know if he was not aware that no man was allowed to vote on the Minnesota Constitution except on the same ticket as that for State officers.

Mr. Douglas explained that the mode of submission was full, fair, and free. The voters put what names they chose on the tickets, and their votes were not controlled in any way.

Eventually, Mr. Pugh withdrew his suggestions respecting the preamble on Mr. Douglas' striking out the words "in pursuance of said act of Congress."

The preamble was thus agreed to.

There being no other amendments pending, the bill was ready to be reported to the Senate, but previously Mr. Kennedy, of Maryland, explained that he would vote against the bill, because the Constitution of Minnesota was directly at variance with the Constitution of the United States, and diametrically opposed to the party he represented. Alien suffrage and squatter sovereignty, he said, must be repudiated. His remarks were strongly American.

Mr. Johnson, of Tennesee, replied, arguing the right of the States to fix the qualifications of their own voters, independent of Federal naturalization.

Adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Washington, Tuesday, April 6.

The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Deficiency Appropriation Bill.

The debate was strictly confined to this measure.

While several showed the necessity of the passage of the bill including the heavy items for the Utah Expedition, others earnestly condemned the incurring of debts to be discharged by appropriations to supply deficiencies.

Mr. Seward, of Georgia, did not think there was any necessity for getting into difficulty with Brigham Young. The whole Army operations were carried out on too magnificent a scale. He would have a law passed prohibiting Army officers coming here, unless for special reasons. This is the central point from whence emanates all the schemes and all the extravagance.

Mr. Taylor, of Louisiana, said nothing had occurred to justify the President in acting in such hot haste in sending the Army to Utah.

Mr. Burnett, of Kentucky, said there is a growing disposition on the part of the Executive department to absorb the powers of the Legislative branch of the Government, and it was time this was checked.

Mr. Tappan, of New-Hampshire, condemned appropriations for the Utah expedition, and would not indorse the Executive usurpation of making war, without the coöperation of Congress. He went into a calculation to show that the transportation of each barrel of flour from Fort Leavenworth to Utah cost one hundred dollars.

The Committee then rose and the House adjourned.

Admission of Minnesota—Questions of Sovereignty—Minnesota an Independent State—The Volunteer Regiments—Territorial Government for Dahcota, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Washington, Sunday, April 4, 1858.

The disposition manifested by Southern Senators to delay the admission of Minnesota into the Union, or make its admission as a Free State dependent upon that of Kansas as a Slave State, is likely—if these gentlemen succeed in their objects—to raise some very profound and interesting question as to the status occupied by the Territories of the United States and their rights. Have the Territories any rights? What is the process of transition from a Territory to a State, and where is the exact point at which the sovereignty of a community, settled upon territory of the United States, becomes perfect? Can a sovereign State exist without the Union, or is a State created only by act of Congress?

These are all questions of high theoretical, and they may shortly become of equal practical consequence. They have been, as yet, I think, indifferently studied, and though the Judiciary Committee of the Senate have summarily denied the claim that Minnesota is a State within the Union, they have not made any elaborate examination of the subject, nor entered upon a discussion of the general principles which confer the attributes of State sovereignty. The claim of Minnesota was denied because political exigencies required that she should be kept in waiting, but unless her demands are shortly complied with, there is every probability that she will present a case for the consideration of Congress and the country, involving all the questions which are here suggested. The people and the representatives of Minnesota are indignant that her admission into the Union should be made to depend upon the shape in which a bill may be passed for the admission of Kansas, and believe that it might, with equal justice, be made to hang upon the fate of a patent law, or an army bill. They claim admission as a right, and not as a favor, and they are determined, if their rights are denied them by Congress, to make up a direct and practical issue with that body by setting in motion the machinery of a State Government without further asking for its permission.

The Legislature of Minnesota assembles upon the first of June, and her representatives here have intelligence to the effect that, unless in the meantime she is admitted into the Union, that body will pass a resolution instructing her Senators and representatives to withdraw their application for admission, and return home. An amendment to the Constitution, authorizing the State officers elected under it to assume the duties of their offices, and exercise them without reference to the Federal Government, will then be passed and submitted to the people, and if ratified by them, the machinery will be at once set in motion, and Minnesota will in fact be declared an independent State. The territorial jurisdiction of the United States must then, of course, be denied, and the nice and momentous questions of sovereignty thereby involved, must receive a practical solution. Would, in such a contingency, Minnesota be a sovereign State, like one of the original thirteen, entitled to come into the Union or stay out, as she might negotiate with the Confederacy to do, or would she be merely a rebellious child of the Union, to be forced in, or forced to remain as a Territory, as Congress might determine? Which side in such a controversy would the State's-Rights Democracy of the South assume?

The Minnesota papers are already discussing these questions, and the advantages and disadvantages of governing themselves. Whether they will arise in a more practical shape, depends upon the action of Congress on the bill for the admission of Minnesota now before it.

It is already clear that if admitted now, the new State will be allowed only two representatives instead of the three which have been elected on general ticket, and which number the Minnesotians all claim they are entitled to. The gentlemen elected—Messrs. Becker, Cavanaugh and Phelps—have already settled between themselves that if but two of them are admitted the two latter shall take the seats, Mr. Becker withdrawing, although he had the highest number of votes. He is a young gentleman of talents and energy of character, and will doubtless be compensated for this sacrifice by his party at home.

I think it is not yet settled, as stated, that the President will accept a New-York and Pennsylvania regiment, if the Senate bill, authorizing only two regiments, is adopted by the House. The Ohioans do not by any means give up that they are to furnish one regiment, and the Kentuckians are positive that one from that State is to be accepted. I telegraphed to you that the House Military Committee had agreed to accept the Senate amendments, upon what I conceived to be the very best authority, but it is now said that the Committee left the whole matter with Gen. Quitman, its Chairman, and he intends to insist on the four regiments, in the expectation that the Senate will recede. So, not greatly to damp the ardor of your fighting New-Yorkers, their chance, if not positively certain, as they seem to believe, is yet good. But if they have got any influence at Washington they should use it with the Senate for the four regiments.

The Senate Committee on Territories have agreed to report a bill for the organization of a Territorial Government for Dahcota. Negotiations are going on with the Indians of this Territory, who own the largest part of the soil, for the extinguishment of their title, in order to open the country to settlers. Why, though, should Dahcota get a Territorial organization, and not Arizona? There are some explanations yet to make on this topic. O.

Fashionable Sketches from Washington—Holy Week—Political and Religious Easter Rejoicings—A Hurrygraph Sketch of Washington Correspondents—No Reception at Minnesota Row—Miss Lane and her Conservatory—The Fancy Ball at Mrs. Gwin's—Dinner Parties and Theatricals—With Arabella's Opinions.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

Washington, Saturday, April 3, 1858.

"Holy week" has been very generally observed at the metropolis. The Israelites, (who number nearly 400 souls,) have eaten unleavened bread, and chanted their songs of Zion; the evangelical denominations have held some half-a-dozen prayer meetings each day; the Episcopalian churches have been open, and the Roman Catholics, (who are numerous, and comprise many of the old cavalier families, with a goodly number of diplomats,) have celebrated the mysteries of their faith with unusual pomp. The tenebræ services, in commemoration of the darkness that overshadowed the earth "from the sixth to the ninth hour," were perhaps emblematic of the doubt and gloom which rested on the political prospects of the North, but the rubicon has been Passed-over—the "paschal candle" of redemption has been lighted—and the loud hallelujahs of Easter now echo far and wide. The choir of St. Matthew's Church will to-morrow perform one of Hummel's masses, with a full orchestral accompaniment, and at St. Patrick's, Beethoven's grand mass in C will be performed, with a full choir, directed by Professor Caulfield. Those, however, who are fortunate enough to obtain admittance into the Convent Chapel at Georgetown, will hear more exquisite music than any of our metropolitan churches can boast of. So Arabella informs me.

What with the devotional exercises and the political crisis of the week, there has been little time for fashionable gossip, and I find little to glean in the metropolitan news-fields, which are so faithfully harvested by "Our Own Correspondents." Industrious gentlemen are these same knights of the note-book. The English papers are just now filled with accounts of the Secret-Police of Paris, but those watchful fellows sink into the shade when compared with the 40 or 50 "regulars" engaged in gathering that political "samphire," Washington news. They are seen at the White House, at the Departments, at the quarters of the members, or on guard around the doors of the Committee-rooms at the Capitol. They can translate the expression on the countenances of those who go in or who come out—can guess at the contents of a sealed letter—can divine the tenor of a telegram and can solve diplomatic mysteries. Clerks, (especially at the circumlocution department,) are their cronies,—they almost worship the "Queen's Messenger," who vibrates between Lord Napier's study and the British mail-agent at New-York,—they hang like shadows around printing-offices to get a glimpse at forthcoming leaders;—and it is strongly suspected that one of them, at least, has confidential interviews with butlers and with ladies' maids. From early morn 'till dewy eve is this wild hunt after "items" and "points" carried on—whether, like the sprites of Gray:

> "Under a tea-cup they may lie,
> Or creased like dog's ears in a folio."

Let not this language be considered disrespectful, I beg, for "Our Own" are as ready to avenge as were the affiliated of the Vehmgericht, and it would be unwise even for a humble artist like myself to provoke their wrath. On the contrary, I would fain pay a tribute of praise to the intelligence, zeal and fidelity of many of these out-post videttes of the great American newspaper army, which has its head-quarters at New-York, although its "columns" are to be found the Union over. But who can avoid a slap at the exceptions?—men as impudent as Ferdinand Count Fathom, as ubiquitous as Fouché, as 'umble as Uriah Heep, as insinuating as Sir Charles Grandison, as hypocritical as Blifil, as mendacious as George Psalmanazar—men who have not sense enough to see that they are despised, and whose skin is too thick to feel the brand of shame—men who lie like truth for those who "retain" them, and varnish truth over with lies, injuring those who will not "fee."

But I am becoming pragmatical—and that on account of a dearth in my own note-book. Even the Thursday "receptions" were almost all given up for the church or the Capitol, and to-day, when hundreds would have been delighted to visit "Minnesota Row," and compliment the accomplished lady of the Senator from Illinois upon the triumph which she can rightfully claim a share in, it is well known that she is at church. Educated in the Church of Rome, Mrs. Douglas is a strict observant of its rites, and Arabella says that she takes a deep interest in the charitable operations of the day.

Miss Lane, although an Episcopalian, "received," and the drawing-rooms of the Executive mansion were crowded. The light was partially excluded and bouquets of rare flowers filled the air with perfume. On Saturdays the conservatory is open, and forms a delightful promenade, filled as it is with rare and odorous plants, many of them loaded with exquisite flowers. Mr. Watt, the head-gardener, is an experienced and intelligent Scotch horticulturist, and among his other treasures are flourishing specimens of the coffee, tea, and cinnamon plants.

Mrs. Secretary Toucey, whose hospitable saloons have been closed during Lent, gives a formal "reception" on Monday evening, and on Thursday evening will come off the much talked-of Fancy Ball at Mrs. Senator Gwin's. Such a ransacking of the Congressional Library for plates of "becoming costumes," has never been witnessed, and I am not sure that it was not the cause of an attack of "vertigo," which prostrated Mr. Meehan, the estimable Librarian, but from which he has recovered. Tailors and mantuamakers have been kept busy at work, and Phillips, the well-known costumer in the Bowery has brought on a large assortment of costumes for hire. It will be, without doubt, the most magnificent fancy ball ever given in the United States, at any private house. New-York and Philadelphia will send on large delegations, and the presence of the diplomatic corps in Court costume, of the Senators in full dress, and of the officers of the army and navy, in full uniform will add to the éclat of the festival. Arabella intends going as Mrs. Trollope, to "take notes."

Mr. Senator Orr gives one of his Congressional dinners to-day, and our Washington Torlonia also gathers his friends around his mahogany. Brougham will have a full house at his complimentary benefit in the evening, the call for which was headed by his friend Senator Douglas. On Monday night, Dawson, who is decidedly the favorite with our play-goers, will receive a bumper-house, and has very wisely selected Dr. Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer," in which he will appear as Tony Lumpkin, with "How to come Out" as the after-piece. Mr. Stuart's neat theatre is a decided "institution," and is well directed by the stage manager, Mr. S. D. Ettinge.

ENOCH EASEL.

The Tammany Quarrel—Caucus of the Anti-"Forresters."

One hundred and twenty-two members of the Tammany Society, who are opposed to the Wood or "Forrester" faction, had an adjourned caucus last evening at the Westchester House, corner of Broome-street and Bowery. Andrew H. Mickle, Ex-Mayor, presided and made a speech.

It was positively stated that a clear majority of the Society—205 in number—had expressed themselves in favor of "legitimate party usages," which would therefore surely triumph at the election for Sachems to take place on the 19th inst.

Speeches were also made by John Van Buren, Richard B. Connolly, Elijah F. Purdy, and others.

Mr. Van Buren's remarks were quite lengthy. He lauded President Buchanan's administration, and labored to show the necessity of union among the Democracy, that its ascendancy and the Union might be maintained. He regarded the designs of the "Forresters" to be treasonable, and intended only for the personal aggrandisement of dangerous and unprincipled men, who were indifferent to everything but their own advancement. He had recently been in Washington, he said, and was prepared to say that "the people there" did not look with indifference on the present struggle within Old Tammany. On the contrary, they were deeply interested in the success of the legitimate party and the defeat of the anarchists.

The other speakers spoke with more bluntness, and enquired why "Gus. Schell," the Collector, and others, who like him ought to feel an especial interest in party usages and party ascendancy, did not come forward like men and Democrats and speak out!

All the speakers were loudly cheered, and a series of resolutions regretting that members of the Tammany Society should so far forget themselves as to enter the doors and take three oaths to create a feud in the "venerable Society," were unanimously adopted.

KANSAS POLITICS.

A Sensible and Practical Letter on Kansas Affairs from Gov. Chase, of Ohio.

From the Lawrence, Kansas, Herald of Freedom.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Friday, March 12, 1858.

MY DEAR SIR: As you well know, I have been from the first an attentive reader of the Herald. I drew mainly from its columns the material of the first executive appeal to the legislative assembly in favor of the actual people of Kansas against the Missouri invaders. Deep, however, as was the interest with which I then perused its pages, it was not greater than that with which I have scanned your recent numbers.

It seems to me that the crisis of affairs in Kansas is near at hand, and, being far more anxious for the success of the Free-State cause than for any mere party or personal success, I have watched with the greatest anxiety the course of events in the Territory; earnestly hoping that they may be so shaped as to result in a substantial Free-State triumph. After the promulgation of the Lecompton Constitution, it was natural that good men should differ as to the expediency of voting for State officers under it. The reasons on both sides seemed strong, and it was not surprising that the Free-State Party was divided upon the question. Subsequent events have demonstrated, I think, that the policy which you advocated was the true one, and it is to be regretted that the Free-State Party did not unanimously take part in that election, and thus render a result which fraud and falsehood now combine to obscure, palpable and unmistakable even to a Buchanan vision.

As to the course now to be pursued, it is clear to me that the articles in the last two numbers of your paper (Feb. 27 and March 6) take the right ground. All my advices from Washington—though there seems recently to be some change in the right direction—inspire the apprehension that the Administration will succeed in forcing the Lecompton bill through. Then will come the crisis, and how to meet it becomes the question. The plan you recommend is the true one, in my humble judgment.

Let the Free-State Legislators and State officers actually elected, together with any Slave-State members actually elected, meet and organize. The fact of election, after the examination by the Commissioners appointed by the late Territorial Legislature, cannot be matters of doubt, I suppose, in the case of any member. Then let the Legislature call a Convention to remodel the Constitution—their right to do this is conceded at every Lecompton meeting, and by almost every Lecompton speaker. It seems to me indisputable. Once in the Union, by a vote of Congress, with a State Government organized in all its branches—legislative, executive and judicial—will CALHOUN dare to give certificates to defeated candidates? Hardly. Will the defeated candidates dare to accept such certificates, and attempt to organize a General Assembly or take possession of the State offices? That is still less likely. Will Mr. BUCHANAN, in the event of such an attempted organization, venture to give Federal support to the pretended officers and legislature? That is least likely of all. In my belief, Mr. BUCHANAN will be contented with the nominal victory over Mr. DOUGLAS, gained by carrying the Lecompton bill through. After that I think he will leave Kansas affairs alone. Should he be mad enough to attempt anything against the really elected State Government, he will deserve impeachment. In that case any extremity of resistance to his usurping despotism will be duty; and in such resistance the people of Kansas and their Government shall have the support—active, earnest, and physical support, if need be—so far as my influence can insure it—of the entire Northwest. I believe, indeed, almost no influence will be needed to secure it. But if no organization of the really elected officers and members shall take place, it is quite possible that CALHOUN may issue his certificates; that you may have another bogus Legislature which may give to Federal interference the forms of law; and it will be more difficult to secure the intervention of other States against such Federal action, and in favor of an unorganized people than it will be to secure such intervention in favor of a Government organized in the hands of men actually elected by the people, if attacked by the Federal authority, put, by the record in the wrong. Every way it seems to me desirable, in the event of the Lecompton bill passing, to have the actually elected Government organized.

The Constitutional Convention called by the late Legislature will perform a good work if they succeed in adopting a State Constitution and getting it to Washington before the Lecompton bill passes. This, however, is hardly to be expected. The question will be taken in the Senate, where there is a clear majority for the bill, next week; and, if enough are bought over to make the experiment safe, it will be forced through the House under the previous question. I am confident it will either fail or be forced through within the next three weeks. Should it fail altogether, then the Constitution of the Convention will be in time. But should the Lecompton bill pass before this Constitution reaches Washington—what then? It is natural that many should say, "Organize under it and fight it out." I should say so, if there appeared no better way. But, as it seems to me, the way you recommend is the better way. To organize under one Constitution, while admitted under another, without any amendments or change of that other, would be revolution, justifiable if necessary, but not to be attempted otherwise. It would be preferable to submission to the Lecompton Constitution administered by the Calhoun defeated candidates; but not preferable to a Free-State organization under the Lecompton Constitution, for the sole purpose of immediately amending it by the substitution of another, conformed to the views of the Free-State majority of the people. This last seems to be the safe way; least liable to objections in circumstances where no way is absolutely free from objections; most likely to unite the real friends of Kansas in the States, and to secure efficient help in case of need; most likely also, I should hope, to unite the Free-state men of the Territory.

I was one of those who desired that the Topeka Constitution might become the fundamental law of Kansas; not that I thought it unexceptionable, but because it was identified with all those early struggles in which you took so prominent a part within the Territory, and with the first efforts in behalf of Free-State organized governments in Kansas, aided by those of us who took part outside. But this sentiment I willingly surrender for the same practical results which I hoped for through that Constitution. Results, not names or forms, are what I want.

Very truly yours, S. P. CHASE.

G. W. BROWN, Esq., Lawrence, Kansas.

Dividends of the New-York Times—Suit in Regard to its Payment.

SUPERIOR COURT—GENERAL TERM—April 5.

Before Hon. Justices Hoffman, Slosson and Pierrepont.

Fletcher Harper vs. Henry J. Raymond et al.—This is an action brought by Fletcher Harper as assignee of Fletcher Harper, Jr., formerly a proprietor of thirty shares in the stock of the NEW-YORK TIMES, against the present proprietors of that paper, to recover a dividend of ten per cent., declared in December, 1855. The case was this morning submitted to the General Term, on an agreed statement of facts.

F. N. BANGS, Esq., opened the case for plaintiff by stating the principal facts. It appeared that, in August, 1851, the defendants became partners in conducting the DAILY TIMES, under written articles of association. Those articles provided, among other things, that all the property of the association or partnership should be divided into one hundred shares. The profits were to be ascertained at fixed periods, and divided among the partners in the proportions of their shares. Before either partner could sell his shares, he was bound to offer them to the association, giving them the refusal for ten days. The purchaser of shares should in no case acquire the right to interfere in the control of the paper, nor should he acquire any interest in the profits until he should have received scrip for his shares, signed by all the other members of the association.

After the association was formed, and was put in operation, Fletcher Harper, Jr., the Assignee of plaintiff, purchased thirty shares in the concern. These shares were transferred to him upon the books. He was afterward elected a director. He remained stockholder and director until July 29, 1855, when, without having offered his shares to the association, as required by the by-laws, he sold them to Fletcher Harper, the present plaintiff. One of the thirty shares was however immediately retransferred by Fletcher Harper, Sen., to Fletcher Harper, Jr., and on the strength of his ownership of that share, the latter continued in the direction until October 22, 1855. On that day, a dispute having some time previously arisen between George Jones and the Messrs. Harper, in relation to an alleged agreement to sell the thirty shares to Jones, and a suit having been brought, to determine the rights of the parties to that controversy, an agreement was made that Fletcher Harper, Jr., should withdraw from all connection with the establishment, until the settlement of the suit.

On December 27, 1855, a dividend was declared, and an entry made among the credits to the other shareholders: "Stock in dispute, $30,000." The stock thus referred to was that held by Harper and claimed by Jones. In making this dividend some current expenses then not ascertained in amount, but which since have proved to amount to $5,000 or thereabouts, were left out of view, for the reason that the amounts were not known. This dividend was afterwards assigned by Fletcher Harper, Jr., to his father, the present plaintiff, and it is this dividend which is now sued for.

The claim of Jones to enforce his purchase of the shares was decided in favor of the Messrs. Harper; and thereupon a suit was brought by E. B. Wesley, one of the defendants, against all other persons interested in the concern, to procure a dissolution of the partnership, and an accounting and division of the profits. Pending this suit, Wesley offered to buy the thirty shares and all the right, title and interest of the Messrs. Harper in the same, for $50,000, the par value of the shares being $1,000 only. This offer was accepted, and a formal assignment of the shares was afterwards executed, and the price agreed on paid.

These are all the important facts. Mr. BANGS contended, first, that at the time when the dividend was declared, it belonged of right to one of the Messrs. Harper. Although Fletcher Harper, Jr., failed to offer his shares to the association, that was perhaps a breach of contract, but did not avoid the sale by him nor forfeit his right to the after-declared profits. If under the articles no interest in profits passed to a purchaser, why, then it remained in the seller, and he could afterwards recover it, either himself or by his assignee. But the profits could not be considered forfeited to the association.

Second, That the sale by the Harpers to Wesley did not pass the dividend to him. He took only the stock. The dividend had already been declared and separated from the capital: it was made the subject of a distinct credit on the books of the association, and did not pass by the sale of the shares.

Third—That it being settled that Harper was and Wesley was not entitled to the dividend, the plaintiff could maintain an action, as upon a contract, for the payment of money to recover the dividend. The case came within the established exceptions to the general rule that an action could not be maintained between partners for a specific sum, but only for accounting and payment of the balance found to be due.

Pending the argument of these and other points, the cause was adjourned till Tuesday.

After the customary oath had been administered the Recorder delivered a long and interesting charge upon various topics connected with the prevalence of crime in this City. He referred to the attempts sometimes made to enforce the payment of civil debts by criminal suits, and called special attention to the subordinate Criminal Courts of the City. Complaints, he said, are of daily occurrence, and the public Press is teeming with them, setting forth that these Courts are infested by a class of men professing to be lawyers or runners for lawyers, who, under the pretence of serving professionally such unfortunate persons as may be charged with crime, habitually resort to every art and practice, and employ every opportunity to plunder them and their friends. These individuals have, of late years, established a monopoly of the smaller grade of offences, almost utterly excluding honorable practitioners from that field, in order the more effectually to enable themselves, without danger, to prey upon the victims of their rapacity. They are in the practice of making false representations to accused parties, or the friends of such persons, that they themselves have great influence with magistrates, and are able to prevent trial for crime, and obtain a discharge from custody before and after conviction. For accomplishing or professedly attempting to accomplish these results, they demand extravagant fees; their rapacity and mercilessness hardly knowing a limit, till the last farthing has been extorted from the penury of their victims. Not stopping here, they plunder them of property, and even the most necessary clothing, and having obtained from these unhappy people every article of possible value, they abandon them remorselessly to their fate. Many of these unprincipled operators have realized large sums of money by the practice of levying black-mail, and these ruthless extortions from the fears and credulity of the unfortunate. It is time that these operations should be checked, and the offenders brought to justice. No doubt, in many cases, an indictment will lie against them for obtaining property by false pretences. By sending for any of the prisoners confined in prison, and subjecting them to an examination, you will discover the manner in which this business is carried on. If a conviction should be obtained and a sufficient punishment inflicted, the evil in question will be speedily abated, if not utterly eradicated. The best interests of the public, and the protection which we are bound to extend to the unhappy persons accused of crime, whether they are guilty or innocent, require a rigid and faithful performance of your duties in this matter.

The chief support of crime in our City is given by the large number of persons who buy and receive stolen goods, knowing them to be such. These operations are carried on openly, and the parties connected in them are known to the Police. I have every reason to believe that some of the more wealthy and extensive receivers of stolen goods are in the practice of paying persons belonging to the present Police, as well as some who were of the old force, in order to obtain silence on their part, or an early intimation of any danger impending from a sortie of the Police. It is almost impossible to bring them to justice, so great are their precautions to avoid detection; and when that does take place, the great amount of money at their command enables them to buy off or suborn witnesses, and thus defeat the ends of justice. Their victims are daily arrested and hurried to prison, while they who cause and create the evil, continue the nefarious business with apparent impunity. Youth of promise are by them seduced from rectitude and induced to engage in a career of crime; and to their influence we must attribute a large majority of the murders as well as larcenies which are perpetrated. The amount of crime which exists here is largely attributable to the support, protection and encouragement given to it by these establishments. Law is set at defiance, and its ministers thus far have not been able to sustain its dignity and efficiency. It is your duty to seek out the actors in this iniquitous practice and to present them for public prosecution.

Within the course of a few years, a large number of men have opened and now have in all parts of the City, places of business, commonly known as loan offices. Their usual method of operating is to purchase all kinds of personal property, having an understanding with the seller that he shall be entitled to a return of the property at a specified time, provided he complies with their terms, and pays the rate of interest which they exact. There is, perhaps, no need to remark, that the terms in question are so constructed and interpreted, that the seller, although acting in good faith, can seldom obtain his property again; and should he desire to do so, he is compelled to pay an exorbitant rate of interest. This practice is in direct violation of the laws relating to pawnbrokers, and the offenders should be promptly indicted and punished. A further reason for your investigation and efficient action in this direction, exists in the fact that these loan offices are largely and chiefly patronized by thieves, for the purpose of disposing of stolen property. Their operations should be checked at once before the evil shall become too powerful, overshadowing everything, and inflicting irreparable injury. A pawnbroker is compelled to pay a tax to the City to keep books containing an accurate and truthful account of every article received, the amount loaned on it, with various other safeguards, calculated to give to the authorities and others interested every aid towards a recovery of goods alleged to have been stolen. Unless, therefore, action be taken by the Grand Jury and the authorities towards repressing this evil, few persons will incur the expenses of obtaining a pawnbroker's license, and subject themselves to the restrictions of the laws applicable to the subject, but will rather open and conduct loan offices, and thus the evil will be continually on the increase.

You will also make inquiry into the practices of pawnbrokers, whose business is duly legalized. The great pecuniary embarrassment existing among all classes of our people, has added largely to the opportunities enjoyed by those engaged in that calling. Complaints have been made that they have, in numerous instances, transcended the regulations which the statute prescribes, producing distress and suffering where it is least capable of being endured. If such instances shall be duly punished, a great evil will be checked in this community and a protection afforded to those who most require it.

An evil which has grown with very great rapidity within the last few years calls for your notice. I allude to the practice of stock-gambling; where brokers buy and sell stocks to be delivered at a future day, at a certain price, without having them in their name or under their control. Their usual course of dealing is to agree to deliver stocks at a specified time and price: at which time if the stocks have gone up or down, they, instead of delivering the stock, and receiving the agreed price, adjust the matter by paying the difference between the agreed price and the then value of the stock to the party in whose favor the difference exists. Should the difference be great, they not only refuse to deliver the stock, but also to pay the difference, and take refuge in repudiation, which they can easily do, as the transaction is not cognizable by a criminal court, and being illegal, no action will lie—thus reducing the transaction in the scale of morality to a grade no higher than betting at the faro table. Very many of those engaged in this business, on the slightest reverse, wholly refuse to adjust their losses, thus bringing reproach on every man engaged therein, many of whom are actuated by honorable motives and intentions. Many of those taking part in this species of gambling belong to what are called the higher classes of society, which of necessity renders the example more pernicious, and more liable to spread in a direction where honesty and industry will give way to rascality and idleness. It is usual for many of these operators so engaged to combine for the purpose of increasing or depreciating the price of stocks, for the express purpose of exempting themselves from loss, or of securing advantage in such negotiation. It is impossible to preserve our general business and commercial transactions in any condition of freedom from peril so long as this practice is tolerated. We are every moment on a volcano, and liable to a financial convulsion which will involve, more or less, the whole community. Not only is it demoralizing, but it works great injury to bona fide owners of stock. If, therefore, after due consideration, you shall deem such a measure to be an effectual safeguard, or even calculated to mitigate the evil in question, you are recommended to call upon the Legislature to pass such laws as may meet the exigencies of the case.

The Recorder proceeded to call attention to the practice of arresting citizens without a warrant, which was characterized as a gross violation of personal rights, and also to the compounding of felonies and misdemeanors. He also spoke of the constant disturbance of the public peace by vagabonds and fighting men, and of the manner in which the Executive clemency is often invoked for their protection. After calling attention to the low dance houses of the City and to usury, lotteries, &c., as required by law, the Recorder spoke of violations of the Liquor law, which among other things, provides "that no inn, tavern or hotel keeper shall sell, or give away any intoxicating wines or liquor on Sunday, or upon any day on which an election shall be held and within a quarter of a mile from the place where such election shall be held," &c. In my judgment the words "tavern, inn or hotel keepers," as used in this section of the act, mean only those persons who have taken out licenses for such places, pursuant to the provisions of this act. You are, therefore, not to find any indictment against any one under this section, unless they have taken out a license pursuant to the provisions of the act.

The Recorder closed by pointing out the manner in which the Grand Jury were to proceed in the discharge of their duties, and by remarking that from the petit Jury in the trial of causes, the community expect a verdict in conformity with their oaths, founded on evidence and not on sympathy. These sympathetic verdicts tend to increase the higher grades of crime. The use of the knife and pistol, in accordance with the finding of several Juries, is rapidly being established as the most easy, effective and proper way of redressing a wrong. These dangerous weapons should never be used unless there is an immediate and undoubted reasonable apprehension of death or great bodily injury. The petit Jury should not allow their feelings to override their judgment and permit the criminal to escape his just deserts upon flimsy pretexts of self-defence and sophistic arguments of counsel.

Taking these views as your guide, you will now proceed to the discharge of our duties.

The Collins Steamers for Philadelphia.

From the Philadelphia North American, Tuesday.

At a meeting of citizens, called by request, at the rooms of the Board of Trade, for the purpose of considering some suggestions or propositions in regard to the Collins steamers, on motion, His Honor the Mayor was called to the Chair, and JOSEPH C. GRUBB was appointed Secretary.

Some remarks were made by the Chairman in explanation of the object of the meeting, and upon the feasibility of securing the Collins line of steamers, and the consolidation of sufficient strength upon their future support.

Statements of the terms upon which they could be secured were made by Captain WEST and Mr. GEORGE MCHENRY, to the effect that it was morally certain that the line could be brought to Philadelphia on the payment of a sum of five hundred thousand dollars, and the security of one million of dollars more by mortgage of the ships and of some portion of the mail revenues. Mr. MCHENRY stated that assurances, had been given him at Washington of a liberal disposition on the part of the Government to aid a mail line from this port.

After some further discussion, Mr. MERRICK offered the following resolutions which were adopted;

Resolved, That a Committee of three be appointed to consider and report a plan of operations to be adopted to secure a European line of steamers from this port.

Resolved, That, when the meeting adjourn, it meet again at the call of the Committee.

The meeting appointed the following gentlemen as this Committee: S. V. MERRICK, GEORGE MCHENRY and J. E. ADDICKS.

CONDITIONS OF THE PURCHASE OF MOUNT VERNON.—The Virginia papers publish the following letter from the owner of the Mount Vernon estate:

MOUNT VERNON, Monday, March 29, 1858.

* * * Heretofore, I have only been willing to dispose of Mount Vernon to the United States, or to Virginia, as I believe that in the hands of one or the other, it would be better protected and preserved than in the possession of any individual or association. The events of the past seven years, however, seem to indicate that neither Virginia nor the United States wish to acquire the place. Under these circumstances, and believing that after the two highest powers in our country, the women of the land will be the safest—as they will certainly be the purest—guardians of a national shrine, I am willing so far to comply with your request, as to await for a reasonably limited period of time, the propositions you wish to make to me on behalf of the Association over which you preside. And I assure you that unless these proposals are inconsistent with what I believe to be my duties upon the occasion, I shall be inclined to give them the most favorable consideration.

Your obedient servant,
JOHN A. WASHINGTON.

REMOVAL OF THE TIMES OFFICE.

On or about the 1st of May the TIMES Establishment will be removed to the new TIMES BUILDING upon Park Row, Spruce-street and Nassau-street. We are now engaged in putting up new steam boilers and engines, and HOE'S Ten Cylinder Presses, in the vaults of the new building, and as soon as these are ready for use the removal will take place. When once established in our new quarters, we hope to introduce various additions and improvements in the management of THE TIMES, from which we have been precluded hitherto by lack of space and other needed facilities.

The business of THE TIMES is steadily and rapidly increasing. Our circulation is constantly extended, and our daily receipts for Advertising were never larger than they are at present. Our new Building has been constructed expressly for the accommodation of our business, and will permit of its extension to an unlimited extent. It is perfectly fire-proof, being built of stone, brick and iron from top to bottom, and is beyond question the finest Newspaper Establishment in the world. We shall do everything in our power to render THE TIMES itself fully worthy of its new habitation.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

In the U. S. Senate yesterday, Mr. SLIDELL, of Louisiana, stated that, availing himself of the rules, he should request the Clerk of the Senate to hold back the Kansas bill from the House of Representatives three days, and claimed a right to do so. Mr. STUART, Mr. BAYARD and Mr. DOUGLAS, denied this right. After discussion, the President pro tem., Mr. FITZPATRICK, of Alabama, decided in favor of Mr. SLIDELL. But Mr. CRITTENDEN and others, saying they had never known a previous instance of the kind, the matter was laid on the table. The Minnesota bill came up. Mr. FITCH, of Indiana, charged Mr. DOUGLAS with lukewarmness in respect to this bill, which charge Mr. DOUGLAS warmly repelled. Mr. DOUGLAS being sustained by Mr. GREEN, of Missouri, the matter was dropped by Mr. FITCH, though not till after DOUGLAS and he had exchanged flat contradictions—a circumstance which shows the temper of the Kansas debate. Mr. KENNEDY, of Maryland, said he would vote against the Constitution of Minnesota, because his (the American) party repudiated Alien Suffrage and Squatter Sovereignty. Mr. JOHNSON, of Tennessee replied. The bill was ready to be reported, when the Senate adjourned. In the House the Deficiency Bill was debated in Committee of the Whole. Much objection was expressed to the debts proposed to be incurred. Mr. SEWARD, of Georgia, could see no necessity for a difficulty with BRIGHAM YOUNG, and censured the scale of expense on which the Mormon War is projected. Mr. TAYLOR, of Louisiana, thought the President unjustifiable in sending an army in such hot haste to Utah. Mr. BURNETT, of Kentucky, thought it was time to check the growing disposition on the part of the Executive to usurp legislative functions. Mr. TAPPAN, of New-Hampshire, condemned the appropriations for the Utah Expedition, and the act of the President in making war without the consent of Congress. The Committee rose, and the House adjourned.

Not much business of importance was done in the State Senate yesterday. It is understood that the Governor sent in, during the Executive Session, nominations for Police Commissioners and Harbor Master, which were referred. In the Assembly, the bill to authorize sleeping cars on the Central Railroad was passed. A sharp struggle took place on the bill to authorize the construction of a railroad on streets parallel with Broadway, but it was finally passed, by 74 to 33.

The Royal Mail steamship America, with three days' later news from Europe, is now in her twelfth day out from Liverpool, and fully due at Halifax. Nothing had been seen of her at 10 o'clock last night. The papers and letters by the steamship Indian, which arrived at Portland day before yesterday, were forwarded from Boston yesterday afternoon and received in the City shortly after midnight. The telegraphic summary published yesterday morning contained all the news of importance.

A private letter from Alexandria, which we publish elsewhere, gives some interesting particulars of the expedition to Jaffa of Mr. EDWIN DE LEON, our Consul-General for Egypt and its dependencies, to investigate the late dreadful outrages committed upon the family of Mr. DICKSON. The mission of Mr. DELEON, who displayed great energy throughout, was entirely successful, and when he left Jaffa, four of the Arab criminals had been arrested, tried, convicted, and were under well-merited sentence of death for the unparalleled acts of brutality that they committed.

The result of the Connecticut State Election is now placed beyond a doubt. BUCKINGHAM, the Republican candidate for Governor, is elected by upwards of 3,000 plurality, and the Republicans have large majorities in both branches of the Legislature.

The dwelling-house of DANIEL COMSTOCK, at Leroy, N. J., was burned on Sunday night, and himself, wife and four children perished in the flames. The children were all under ten years of age.

A meeting of citizens of Philadelphia, presided over by the Mayor, was held on Monday, to consider the expediency of purchasing the Collins steamers for the purpose of establishing a European line to and from Philadelphia. Captain WEST and Mr. MCHENRY were present, and stated that the three ships could be secured for $1,500,000, one-third in cash. A Committee was appointed, with power to call another meeting.

General PERSIFER F. SMITH is to leave Washington to-day, preparatory to taking command of the Utah Expedition.

Coroner CONNERY'S investigation into the cause of the death of young SAMUEL, was continued, yesterday, at the Second Ward Station-house. SMITHSON, the young man who had been a visitor at the house of the young lady to whom the deceased was paying his addresses, was examined, and related where and how he had spent the last ten days. Two witnesses testified that SMITHSON had used threatening expressions with regard to SAMUEL. The inquest was adjourned to Monday in order to give the Deputy-Superintendent of Police of Brooklyn an opportunity to make further inquiries before it is concluded.

Two young men named JOEL ROGERS and DAVID PIERCE, were arrested yesterday, charged with being engaged in a gift-swindling enterprise, in issuing a newspaper called the Casket of Diamonds, and promising to each subscriber who paid in advance a chance to win diamonds valued at from $300 to $20,000. The office of the paper was at No. 308 Broadway. Only one number of the paper was issued. After promising to abandon the business and empowering the Mayor to receive and open all letters addressed to them hereafter, they were discharged.

CHARLES TURNER, Deputy Street Commissioner, was arrested yesterday, charged with abstracting papers from the Street Commissioner (CONOVER'S) office. He was taken before the Mayor, who set down the examination of the case for this morning.

At a large meeting of the New-York Historical Society last night, Hon. GEORGE BANCROFT read an interesting narrative of the battle of Lexington, the first of the war of Independence. At its close he received the unanimous thanks of the Society.

The Brooklyn City Election took place yesterday. Up to a late hour last night the vote for Alderman in some of the Wards had not yet been canvassed, though sufficient was known to indicate the successful candidates. Elsewhere we give the general results so far as known.

The General Markets yesterday, were firm for Cotton, the sales of which amounted to about 1,400 bales. Flour was quite heavy, and some common brands declined a shade. Wheat was pretty freely purchased at uniform rates. Corn was scarce and in request at advanced prices. Provisions continued in good demand, and they were held with more firmness. Rio Coffee, Rice and imported Sugars attracted more attention at unchanged quotations. No really new feature was discernible in other branches of trade.

The Political Horizon.

A stranger reading our political newspapers just now, might imagine that the political millennium had arrived. The organs of all parties either are, or affect to be, equally pleased with the result of the vote in Congress on the Kansas bill. The Americans are particularly exultant because the House adopted the amendment of Senator CRITTENDEN, who was one of the great lights of their party. The Republicans exult in having defeated, or at least checked, the Administration project of forcing the Lecompton Constitution upon the people of Kansas, without obtaining or even asking their consent. And the organs of the Administration derive great comfort, under the loss of the bill, from the consideration that the Republicans have committed themselves to the principles of Popular Sovereignty, and also to the conditional admission of a Slave State. Thus all parties find in the result—or affect to find—something to be happy about,—and the country witnesses such an exhibition of mutual satisfaction as has not previously been seen for a long time.

All this shows that the various political parties of the country are much less exacting, and much more easily satisfied, than they have generally been supposed to be. None of them intend to dissolve the Union in case their extreme demands are not conceded. They will take things as they come, and make the best of it. A month or two ago we were solemnly assured that, if the Lecompton Constitution was rejected by the House, the Union should be forthwith dissolved. The rejection took place, but the dissolution did not;—the men who were to accomplish it are still busy voting men and money to the national army, and striving to create a police which shall protect life and limb in the national capital. On the other hand, it was supposed by the Republicans that if Kansas was admitted under the Lecompton Constitution, the State would be in the hands of the slaveholders,—that it could only be rescued by force of arms, and that civil war would begin in Kansas and forthwith spread to all parts of our beloved land. These apprehensions, too, have been allayed. It is pretty well understood now, both North and South, that the fate of Kansas is not to be decided at Washington,—that its destiny is beyond the reach of Congress,—and that, although it may be a matter of very great importance to members of Congress themselves whether they act like honest men or political knaves, the practical difference to the people of Kansas is very small. They will take possession of the State Government and make a Constitution to suit themselves, whether with or without the permission of Congress.

It is undoubtedly true that the Republicans, in voting for Mr. CRITTENDEN'S amendment, have committed themselves to the doctrine of popular sovereignty,—so far as that doctrine recognizes the right of the people to form their own State Constitution. But within those limits the doctrine has never been denied:—it was only upon the question whether the people of a Territory, while it remained such, were sovereign over it or not, that a difference of opinion prevailed. Still, we concur with the Journal of Commerce in the opinion that this point, too, has been substantially decided, and that the whole country will hereafter acquiesce in it. We are a practical people, and are disposed to accept results when once attained. We are not fond of fighting anew battles that have been decided. And although many will still continue to hold, as a matter of law, that Congress ought to make laws for the Territories and exclude Slavery from them, no serious attempt will probably be made hereafter to enforce the exercise of that power, or to interfere with the right of the people to establish and regulate their domestic institutions in their own way. The North, we suspect, will be even more decided and earnest in its support of the principle of popular sovereignty than the South,—for it will be very likely to exclude Slavery from States and Territories south of the line up to which it was practically permitted by the Missouri Compromise.

It is also true that the Republicans have voted in favor of admiting Kansas as a Slave State, provided the people vote to have it so. This, however, is but a conditional vote, and the condition is one morally certain not to be fulfilled; so that the commitment on this point is theoretical rather than practical. But we presume the Opposition Party will not hereafter stand upon the ground of resistance to the admission of any more Slave States. Individuals in the Republican ranks have held this position and will do so still. The platform of 1856 committed that party to it so far as territory dedicated to freedom by the Missouri Compromise was concerned, and so far as the action of that Presidential Campaign was involved. But platforms are temporary structures,—always designed to serve a purpose, and tolerably certain to damage the purpose they intend to serve. They are generally taken down when they have been used, and if this is not done, they are certain to tumble down themselves. It is not likely, therefore, that the platform of 1856 will do duty again for the party which formed it. No great party will plant itself hereafter upon the position that Slave States seeking admission shall be excluded, because they are Slave States, from the Union. Both parties—for there will be but two for three or four years to come,—will agree that the people of each new State shall decide the question for themselves, and that their decision shall be respected by Congress and the country.

The real contest in Congress now is not upon the principle—for that, as the Journal of Commerce urges, is conceded,—but upon the fact, in regard to Kansas. The Administration takes the ground that the Lecompton Constitution has been constructively approved by the people of Kansas, and that the requirements of the principle have therefore been met. The Opposition insist that it is not a case for construction at all,—but that the people should be permitted to say, directly and unmistakably, whether they do or do not approve it. The issue is very simple,—and the country has decided it long ago. It only remains to be seen whether Congress represents the country, or not.

City Nurseries of Crime.

Recorder BARNARD, yesterday, in his charge to the Grand Jury, besides calling their attention to the five particular stereotyped subjects which the law makes it his duty to bring to their notice, also directed their attention to a few of the more malignant cockatrice nests in which a very considerable number of our rogues are hatched. The worst of these are the so-called "loan offices," which are, in reality, not much better than depositories of stolen goods. The Recorder says, and we have no doubt with entire justice, that they are the chief support of crime in our City; for, if there were no safe marts in which burglars could dispose of their stolen property, their occupation would very soon become too unprofitable to be followed. The great difficulty of bringing these aiders and abettors of thieves to justice, according to the Recorder, is owing to their being well known to the members of the Police, who protect them in their villainy. This is a startling declaration, coming from such a source; but the Recorder unreservedly states that he has every reason to believe that certain members of the Metropolitan Police, as well as of the old Police force, are in the pay of these receivers of stolen goods. Such a declaration, coming from the Chief Criminal Magistrate of the City, cannot be disregarded by the Police Commissioners, and they will, of course, investigate the matter, and at least endeavor to discover whether the astounding charge be true or not.

The Recorder, also, calls attention to another class of operatives whom he considers dangerous to the public welfare, but whose practices have not hitherto been brought to the notice of the Grand Jury;—namely, Wall-street Bulls and Bears. There being no law under which these disturbers of the public morals, who, the Recorder says, belong to the upper classes of society, can be indicted, he recommends that the Legislature shall be called upon to pass a law to meet the exigencies of the case.

But the Recorder does not confine himself altogether to the violaters of the laws. With most praiseworthy impartiality and a stern sense of justice worthy of a BRUTUS, he bestows himself first, and with greatest severity, upon those who avail themselves of the machinery of his own Court to oppress the unfortunate, and accomplish their own base purposes. He cautions the Grand Jury against those who endeavor to procure indictments for the purpose of enforcing the payment of civil debts, and makes a terrible exposure of the ways of those rapacious rascals known as shysters, who are the disgrace of the criminal courts of this City. As to infringements of the "liquor law," the Recorder puts a very literal construction upon the meaning of the act, and instructs the Grand Jury that no one can be indicted for violating it except those who have taken out a license in conformity with its provisions. By the law comes the sin, as was said by St. Paul. It is only those whom the law has licensed who can violate the law.

The Washington Police.

During most of Monday, the time of both branches of Congress was occupied with a Police bill for the City of Washington. It was proposed to raise a patrol force of one hundred men, and to appropriate one hundred thousand dollars by way of defraying the expense. Bills for this purpose were introduced in both Houses. The Senate bill passed. That of the House was referred to the Committee of the Whole, to be disposed of at an early day.

The country at large will be taken by surprise to learn the condition of the National Capital, as revealed in the debates on these bills. New-York has a reputation for disorder and crime, which is the horror of the rural districts; but New-York itself is conceded to be an elysium compared with Washington. A report accompanying the Senate bill expressed in the strongest terms the state of bloodshed and riot in the city." Mr. SEWARD described the condition of affairs as a "reign of terror," and Mr. DOUGLAS said "no man's life was safe, even on Pennsylvania-avenue." In view of these facts Congress is called upon to create an efficient Police.

Without intending to object to the measure, we think it pertinent to inquire why Washington City cannot take care of herself? Has the expenditure of twenty or thirty millions for public buildings, city improvements, &c., to say nothing of the annual revenue flowing to her citizens from the presence of the Government in their midst, made Washington the mere nursling of Congress? Has she no municipal organization, no police, no government? With some 50,000 inhabitants, where are her ordinances, her regulations, her self-respecting and self-sustaining action as a Corporation? There is not another town of like size in the Union so favored; and there is none so utterly helpless, so overrun with riot, so deplorably dependent. It may be right,—doubtless it is,—for the protection of strangers that Congress should supply what the city itself shamefully neglects. But it is not due to the citizens of Washington. On the contrary, it is due from them to Congress and to those non-residents who frequent their city, to establish an efficient police of their own. That they omit this first duty of a municipality is their disgrace.

The Balance Dock Difficulty.

The workingmen of the Seventh Ward, whose interests would be very seriously affected by a removal of the balance docks from that part of the City where they have been so long located, have held an indignation meeting to remonstrate against the proposed change. The apprehension that possessed their minds was that, if the balance docks were expelled from their present location, they would be removed over to Jersey City; and the vast army of mechanics, the caulkers, joiners, blacksmiths, painters and engineers, who depend upon these docks for employment, would be compelled, in that case, to expatriate themselves and become residents of New-Jersey, leaving behind them all the local institutions which they had helped to establish, their churches, schools and social relations, and the homes to which they were endeared. And their apprehensions are not without good cause. The river front of Brooklyn, and every available part of our City water line on the East River, are so crowded that the increase in the commerce of the port will be driven, by necessity, over to New-Jersey, where there is deep water and still an abundance of room. Jersey City is fast becoming to New-York what Birkenhead is to Liverpool, a rival whose aid cannot be dispensed with. Whenever an attempt is made to disturb any of the companies whose vessels lie at our wharves, there is an immediate threat to go over to Jersey City; and our little neighbor is quick to avail herself of any prospect of an increase of her importance, by offering all the facilities at her command on the most accommodating terms.

But Jersey City has only to keep quiet a very short time, and the inevitable overflow of our crowded docks will give her all the navigation she can accommodate. Liverpool fought sturdily against Birkenhead, but at last had to yield, and now her opposite rival is one of her chief aids. Birkenhead furnishes deep water and capacious docks for the ships which would be compelled to abandon the Mersey, but for the accommodation they find there; and there, too, has been established one of the most extensive iron ship-manufactories in the kingdom, which is of immense importance to the commercial interests of Liverpool. It is the duty of New-York, however, to make room for all the commerce that comes to her wharves as long as she can, and not to drive any away unnecessarily. The repairing of ships is one of our great manufacturing interests, which gives employment to a great army of mechanics of various kinds, and the facilities for carrying it on ought rather to be increased than diminished. If the Balance Docks should be forced from their present position, some of them would inevitably go over to Jersey City, and the City and the State would be deprived of a certain amount of taxable property and population which might have been retained here. It rests with the Court of Appeals to decide whether the balance docks are to be considered nuisances or not, in their present location; but it will be for the people to determine whether they shall remain there.

CRYING FOR SPILLED MILK.—Our neighbors of the Tribune seem to be in distress. On Friday they took an advertisement, headed "$70,000," which was to fill six columns of their paper and bring them in the comfortable and convenient sum of $157 80. The announcement was very mysterious in its language, and conveyed no definite idea of its object to uninitiated readers: but the Tribune, through its long and confidential dealings with FERNANDO WOOD and "Brother BEN," saw the tail of the cat in the bag, and shrewdly suspected that the thing meant a lottery, and that the Brothers Wood were to reap some benefit, directly or indirectly, from the advertising columns of the Tribune. So in the first excitement of the discovery, our philosophical neighbors left out the advertisement, although they had gone to the trouble and expense of putting the whole six columns in type.

So far all was very well. It was a magnanimous looking sacrifice of $157 80, plus the cost of type-setting, to the Tribune's well-known hatred of FERNANDO WOOD:—and what was still better, the proceeding was susceptible of an exceedingly moral construction, and might be made to redound greatly to the honor and profit of the severely moral proprietors of the Tribune. But a day's reflection seems strangely to have disturbed their temper. They are exceedingly abusive of the Herald, which published the advertisement and pocketed the money, and seem to be ill-tempered generally in regard to the whole transaction. This is very unwise. It looks too much like being inconsolable for the loss of $157 80,—or envious of the Herald, which preferred to pocket the cash. However, if the Tribune can get the Herald indicted, as it is trying to do, for publishing this advertisement, and getting the pay which the Tribune missed, perhaps it would feel a little consoled for its mishap. We should be very glad if the Tribune would give us a clue by which we may detect advertisements of illegal enterprises, whether the WOOD Brothers have anything to do with them or not: for in our ignorance of lotteries and kindred establishments, we ourselves may some day be caught in the same trap.

STEAM FOR THE CANALS.—It is necessary now to think of propelling canal-boats by steam. The experiment has indeed been tried and failed many times within the last twenty years. But the failure was owing to the small size of the prism and the little depth of water With the enlarged canal—seventy feet wide and seven feet deep—there can be no doubt of complete success. Mr. STOW has introduced a bill in the Senate offering $10,000 reward to the person who shall first invent a successful method and application of steam to canal-boats, at a saving of a specified per centage in expense, time and capacity; and it is said that the two chief transportation lines have offered $500 for a like object. Doubtless the end in view will soon be attained, and we shall see on the Erie Canal vessels of two hundred and fifty tons maintaining a speed of eight miles per hour. When this result shall be fully or even proximately reached, there need be no more croaking about the future of our public works.

INTERESTING TO OYSTER EATERS.—Notwithstanding the earnest and eloquent appeals of Governor WISE in his two messages to the Legislature of Virginia on the subject of oysters, the House of Delegates has refused to pass a bill for levying a tax on the products of the "State fundum." Virginia oysters are to be, as heretofore, an untaxed luxury. The doctrine of laisser faire is to be applied in its widest sense to the submarine wealth of the shores of the Old Dominion, and the oystermen of Staten Island will be permitted to follow their old trade without let or hindrance.

THE MAJESTY OF THE LAW!—We clip the following item from the Baltimore Sun:

> "WALTER KENNEDY, a lad, was yesterday brought before Justice BOYD, by Officer HAUSE, of the Southern District Police, charged with peddling oranges and lemons without a license. The lad, who is not more than 10 or 12 years of age, had been previously warned by the Police. The little fellow pleaded in excuse that his father had compelled him to go upon the street, and offer the fruit for sale. The magistrate imposed a fine of $1, and in default of payment committed the offender to jail."

If murder, arson, burglary, and kindred offences were as vigorously punished as the shocking crime of this little boy, Baltimore would be a model city. No wonder it is filled with rowdies and assassins, when its children are educated in jail for attempting to earn an honest living.

Amusements.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The Concerts Musard will not commence until Monday next, owing to the extensive decorations and arrangements which are in progress, and which will not be finished until that day. The sale of tickets begins on Thursday at 9 o'clock.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—Mr. and Mrs. JAMES STARK, tragedians, commenced an engagement at this house last evening, and were welcomed by a good and critical audience. The play was the "Gamester." Mr. STARK is a careful, discreet and able actor, who in the round of characters he proposes to give, will fill the leading parts to the satisfaction of the audience. He played Beverley without disturbing the traditionary cobwebs which hang around that character—but played it well. Mrs. STARK belongs to an intenser school than her husband—a school which we have never been able to appreciate. She possesses an advantage, however, in knowing how to act up to the best points of Mr. STARK'S acting, and this she uses with discretion.

Mrs. ALLEN was excellent as Charlotte, and Messrs. CANOLL, DAVENPORT and T. A. MORRIS were quite good in their several parts.

BROADWAY THEATRE.—To the explorer of ancient dramatic literature, JOHN WEBSTER'S play of the "Duchess of Malfi," comes like a flash of light. Not that its merits in themselves are especially brilliant, but because they contrast favorably with the feeble glimmers emitted by some others of SHAKESPEARE'S cotemporaries. The tragedy is of the thrilling kind, and abounds in horrible situations, whilst the plot is blood-thirsty to the last degree. The dialogue is pompous without always being elevated, but at times it touches the poetic standard, and is grand. As an acting play, the version given by Mr. and Mrs. WALLER last evening at the Broadway, has everything to recommend it, and even those faults which are unpalatable to the student are not unwelcome to an audience.

Mrs. WALLER is a lady of decided talent, although a little wild and restless, and also a little conventional. She aims largely for effects, and wins them generally in the old-fashioned way, but sometimes she permits her native talent to have full sway, and then something more brilliant than common tragic tinsel is the result. A few performances before a Metropolitan audience will, we trust, place this lady in a favorable light with the public. We were unable to detect any peculiar merit in Mr. WALLER beyond that which belongs to every good stock actor.

The tragedy is well played, and has been put on the stage in a careful manner.

MISS STOCKTON'S CONCERT.—Miss FANNY STOCKTON, a young lady who made her début a few months ago, gave a concert last evening at Dodworth's Saloon, and a very large and kindly audience paid homage to the fair aspirant. The programme was not attractive, nor were the assistants of the highest class, with the exception of Mr. EDWARD MOLLENHAUER and Mr. W. A. KING.

Miss STOCKTON possesses a remarkably fine soprano voice—not very powerful, but very sweet and manageable. She has some facility of execution, and seems to have studied her art with earnestness. But she has much to learn, and is very far from being an artiste fit to appeal to the critical verdict of a public concert room. Miss STOCKTON has not yet learnt how to deliver her voice; how to present those tones which her fine organ is capable of producing; and this defective education results in certain hissing defects and nasal intonations, which are unpleasant, as they are inartistic. In musical elocution, too—in the perception of the difference between a succession of notes which constitutes a passage, and the succession of notes which constitutes a phrase—Miss STOCKTON has much to learn. No artist can be great without knowing the ups and downs of composition. On the other hand, Miss STOCKTON is free from acquired defects, unless an over-use of the demi-voix (a sort of singing out of sight and almost out of hearing) may be so considered. If we did not think that Miss STOCKTON is destined to become a prominent chamber vocalist, we should not take the trouble to pen these remarks. But her youth, her fine voice, and her personal attractions, all tend to a widely-acknowledged popularity, which we hope one day to see fully merited.

THE HUTCHINSON FAMILY.—After a year's absence this celebrated and popular family gave a concert last evening at the Mozart Rooms. The programme was much the same as usual, and elicited rounds of applause and peals of laughter, as in the olden time. Those who have not heard the Hutchinson family should avail themselves of the present opportunity. The entertainment is in every respect remarkable, and affords a very agreeable contrast to the usual concert programme. The unquestionable earnestness which characterizes some of the pieces, and which is highly pathetic in spite of ultraism; the utterly reckless absurdity and buffoonery of some other pieces; the wild, unkempt, prophetic look of the singers; the extraordinary harmony, unisons and accompaniments they adopt, and the marvelously-dry and chip-like speeches they address to the audience, are circumstances in the HUTCHINSONS' entertainment which give it a peculiar and thoroughly-enjoyable character. Originality is not easily obtained in these days, and we are glad to see that the HUTCHINSONS, who are so perfectly original in everything they do, are remembered with the old favor. The few concerts they give in this City should be crowded nightly.

HAYDN QUARTETTE.—The second soirée of the Haydn Quartette in Brooklyn, was given at the Polytechnic Institute last evening. This Quartette party, formed upon the same model as that of Mr. THEODORE EISFELD'S, consists of Messrs. HAGEN, HAGERMEISTER, BERTEL and SEELICKE. It is furnishing, through a series of regular entertainments, the choicest of classical music for the delectation of our Brooklyn neighbors. The principal piece of last night was HAYDN'S Quartette in B, Op. 95, which was very admirably performed. The vocal department, as at the great soirée, was intrusted to Mrs. CLARA M. BRINKERHOFF, a lady whose musical taste and execution are always unimpeachable. Suffering under indisposition, however, Mrs. BRINKERHOFF retired after singing one of GUMBERT'S pleasant melodies, "My Father's Home." Mrs. SCHLARBAUM assisted at the piano. We are glad to see a better attendance at these Concerts, for they deserve encouragement.

Robbery and Attempted Murder.

OWEN MCGRATH, a gardener from Putnam County, arrived in the City on Monday afternoon. On leaving the cars at Thirty-first-street he was accosted by three strange men, with whom he soon became quite intimate, and drank several times. The party continued together until about 12 o'clock, at which time MCGRATH was quite intoxicated, so much so that he disclosed to his companions the fact that he had considerable money about him. Another walk was proposed and MCGRATH was taken to the Manhattan Gas House pier at the foot of Twenty-second-street, where he was set upon by his new acquaintances, who, after beating him until he was senseless, robbed him of $200 in bank bills and a check on one of the City banks for $400, threw him into the river and fled. His sudden immersion restored MCGRATH to complete consciousness. He called loudly for help, and his cries were heard by some hands from the gas works, who rescued him. Yesterday the foolish gardener made affidavit of the above facts before Justice QUACKENBUSH, who sent Policemen in search of the robbers, whom MCGRATH thinks he can identify.

FROM ALBANY.

Probable Failure of the Quarantine Bill—The Proposed Railroad Parallel with Broadway—Constitutional Convention—Executive Session—Police Commissioners, &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Tuesday, April 6, 1858.

Both Houses were busy much of the day in the doing of routine business. The third reading of bills was the order in the Assembly, interrupted only by an effort made by Dr. HUBBARD to get up the bill to facilitate the removal of the Quarantine station. The effort failed. There is now no possible chance that it can be reached in the regular order of business—and certainly no hope can be entertained that the House will vote it up out of its order.

The people of Staten Island must now save themselves as they can. The Legislature will not this year do anything to relieve them from the nuisance from which they have so long suffered.

Among the important bills read this morning, was that to authorize the construction of a railroad through Mercer and Church streets, and certain other streets and avenues parallel and adjacent to Broadway. This bill was called up for a third reading on Friday evening of last week, but was laid on the table to give some gentlemen an opportunity of examining its provisions, who had not been able to do so. This morning it was taken from the table, and put on its final passage, by a direct vote of the House. Mr. CHANLER moved to recommit to the Committee of the Whole—the usual motion at this period of the session, when gentlemen desire to kill a measure. The House refused to recommit, and the third reading proceeded. That concluded, the roll was called and the bill was passed—Ayes, 74; Noes, 33. A motion was made to reconsider, and this was lost—Ayes, 26; Noes, 65. So the bill goes to the Senate.

The principal opposition it has thus far encountered has been engendered by the representatives of the other Railroad Companies, who naturally have a repugnance to the construction of any more roads that may possibly give the public better accommodations than they now have.

No business of general interest was passed in the Senate. Senator STOW had a special order—the bill to call a Constitutional Convention—upon which he made one of those brilliant and earnest arguments for which he has such a well-merited reputation. He riddled this miserable bundle of absurdities which we call a Constitution, until there was nothing of it left but shreds and patches. There is little prospect that the Legislature will now pass the bill, but the speech which Senator STOW made in its support, could not have failed to convince every hearer that such a Convention had become a matter of necessity.

The Senate held an Executive session. It was announced that an effort might be made to discharge the Committee to whom was referred the nomination of Mr. LEAVENWORTH, for Auditor, but I do not think it was done.

The Governor did, it is said, transmit for confirmation as Commissioners of Police, the names of JAMES BOWEN, JAMES S. T. STRANAHAN and THOMAS B. STILLMAN. These nominations were referred to the Senators from the district in which the nominees reside. Messrs. STRANAHAN and BOWEN to the Senators from the Second Judicial District, and Mr. STILLMAN to the Senators from New-York.

The Governor also sent up for confirmation as Harbor Master the name of ROBERT B. MURRAY, in place of JUNIUS T. STAGG, removed. This nomination was also referred to the Senators from New York.

Mr. BRAMHALL was confirmed as Port Warden. It was supposed this had been done some two weeks ago, but there was some mistake. It is all straight now.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE....ALBANY, Tuesday, April 6.

The Senate consumed this morning in completing a bill directing the payment of interest on protested drafts of the Canal Commissioners, and upon the awards of Canal Appraisers and the Canal Board, and reported progress. The Committee was then discharged, and the bill referred to be reported complete.

The Senate then went into Executive Session.

After Executive Session the Senate went into Committee of the Whole on Mr. STOW'S bill, to submit the question calling the Convention to revise the Constitution and amend the same to the people of the State: Mr. STOW having the floor.

EVENING SESSION.

On the announcement of the bill for a railroad through streets parallel with Broadway, New-York, Mr. MATHER moved its reference to the Committee on Cities and Villages.

Mr. DIVEN moved that it be referred to the Committee on Railroads.

Debate was had, when the bill was referred to the Committee on Cities and Villages by a vote of 20 ayes.

Sixty-one bills were reported, and were mostly ordered to a third reading. The most important were as follows:

Relative to the Superintendent of the Poor of Queens County.

To amend the law for the improvement of breed horses.

Relative to the appointment of Deputy Sheriffs.

To incorporate the Central American Industrial Commercial Society.

To amend the law relative to Civil and Criminal Courts, Brooklyn.

To alter the map of the City of New-York.

To insure the speedy termination of a certain cause in the Court of Appeals.

Relative to steamboat wharves and slips in New-York.

Relative to money levied on seamen arriving in the port of New-York.

Relative to the Northern New-Jersey Railroad.

Authorizing the formation of a Juvenile Reformatory Association.

Relative to the opening of certain streets in Brooklyn.

Relative to minors visiting theatres.

Relative to the Supervisors of New-York.

Relative to a railroad in Broadway, Brooklyn.

To incorporate the New-York Athenæum.

To incorporate the Youatt Lyceum, New-York.

To extend the charter of the New-York Fire Department.

For relief of the Supervisors and Common Council of New-York of 1857.

To incorporate the Income Insurance Company.

The Senate then took up the bill for tolling railroads, and Mr. BRANDRETH spoke on it until the adjournment.

ASSEMBLY....ALBANY, Tuesday, April 6.

The bill to repeal the Central Railroad dime act, came down from the Senate. Immediately on the announcement of the bill Mr. HUTCHINSON moved to refer it to be reported complete.

Mr. DELANEY opposed the motion, which was carried by a large majority.

BILLS PASSED.

To authorize the use of sleeping cars on the Central Railroad, after an amendment so as to make the Railroad Company responsible in damages for injuries received in the sleeping cars as in other cars.

Mr. WINNE moved to take from the table the bill authorizing the construction of a railroad on streets parallel to Broadway.

The motion was warmly opposed by Messrs. CHANLER, DELANEY and CHASE, but was carried by Ayes 71; Nays 32. The bill was then read a third time. During the calling of the roll Messrs. BEACH, CHANLER, CHAUNCEY, CHASE, DELANEY and ENOS, asked to be excused for the purpose of opposing the bill.

After a sharp struggle the bill was passed, by ayes 74, nays 33.

Mr. DAYTON moved for a reconsideration of the vote.

Motion lost by 34 to 65.

The bill to confirm the official acts of THOMAS G. TALMADGE, sole Loan Commissioner of Kings County, was also passed.

EVENING SESSION.

The bill requiring railroads to publish a tariff of their rates was considered in Committee of the Whole, and progress reported in the House.

Mr. WOLFORD moved to order the bill to a third reading, when an interesting debate ensued.

Mr. MCNETT, Mr. CHANLER and Mr. WAGER spoke against the bill.

The Speaker made a strong argument in favor of the bill, declaring that the State never did a more dangerous act against its liberty than when it passed the act consolidating the Central Railroad.

Mr. JONES and Mr. DELANEY also spoke against the bill.

At a late hour Mr. LANING, by consent, interrupted the debate and reported from the Committee on Ways and Means, the following important bills:

To authorize a loan of $3,800,000 for the completion of the Erie Canal.

To transfer the unappropriated balance from the Erie Canal to the Lateral Canals.

To prevent a floating debt against the State for the completion of the Public Works.

To prohibit any contract for work on the canals until expressly authorized by the Canal Board. It gives the Canal Board power at any time to suspend the work on any contract for enlargement, and places the Contracting Board in the hands of the Canal Board.

Also, a bill to increase the efficiency of the Engineer's Department. It places the control of the Engineers more entirely under the State Engineer, independent of the Contracting Board.

Also, a bill to provide the means for the support of the Government.

To impose a mill and one-quarter tax.

Also, a bill to provide the means to pay the interest on the Canal debt. It imposes an additional tax of one half of one mill for that purpose.

Mr. LANING moved to make these bills the special order for Thursday, and every day until disposed of, and to take the final vote on Monday.

Debate ensued, and Mr. ADAMS moved to amend by making the Registry bill first in order, as the special order before the bills now reported, and that the final vote be taken on the Registry bill before any of these bills.

Motion lost for want of a two-thirds vote, and then the House refused to make Mr. LANING's the special order at all.

When the matter was disposed of the debate on the Railroad Tariff bill was resumed.

Mr. HUTCHINSON spoke in favor of the bill.

Half-past Eleven P. M.—Mr. HUTCHINSON still has the floor, and there is little chance of a vote being taken on the bill to-night.

The following is the vote of the members from the City of New-York on the Broadway Parallel Railroad bill:

AYES—Messrs. Winne, Seely, Lynch, Jones, Childs, Gage, Chatfield, Weir, Dyckman.

NAYS—Messrs. Smith, Fitzgerald, Delaney, Jeremiah, Bogs, Chandler, Crane, Moore.

The following is the vote of the members from Brooklyn on the bill:

AYES—Messrs. Dayton and Hanford.

NAYS—Messrs. Beach and Chauncey.

The other members from Brooklyn were absent.

New-York Historical Society.

PAPER BY THE HON. GEORGE BANCROFT, ON THE BATTLE OF LEXINGTON.

The usual monthly meeting of the New-York Historical Society was held last evening in the lecture-room of the Society's building, Tenth-street and Second-avenue. The attendance was unusually large. In the course of the routine of business, the Rev. Dr. OSGOOD read a brief memoir of WM. COURT, an Englishman mentioned in the narrative of Capt. RILEY, who had rendered valuable services to Americans in Mogadore, Morocco, and died in limited circumstances in this City. The memoir was furnished by Dr. LUDLOW, of this City.

A resolution was submitted through the Secretary, by Mr. BENSON J. LOSSING, authorizing the President to appoint a Committee for the purchase of the mutilated statue of WM. PITT, England's greatest Commoner, now and for a long time past to be seen at the Fifth Ward Hotel. This was adopted.

The Fine Arts Committee offered a report and resolution instructing the President and officers of the Society to sign the necessary papers for the transfer of the works of art exhibited by the New-York Gallery of Fine Arts, to the gallery of the Historical Society. Both were adopted.

The Lecture Committee, through their chairman, Mr. BROWN, reported the proceeds of the late course of lectures before the Society to be $1,477 75, of which $615 were paid into the Society's treasury as net profit.

A resolution returning the thanks of the Society to the Lecture Committee and its chairman was offered and adopted.

The paper of the evening was read by the Hon. GEO. BANCROFT, on

THE BATTLE OF LEXINGTON,

Which was fought on April 19, 1775. The Hon. gentleman began by asserting and tracing the continuity of perceptions and powers which, in the action of the people of America, and through the inspiration which came from the masses, led to the struggle for American Independence, inaugurated by the battle of Lexington. The details of that battle, as given by the lecturer, constitute in the main with one of the chapters of his new volume of the History of the United States.

On the afternoon, he said, of the 18th of April, the day on which the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts adjourned, GAGE took the light infantry and grenadiers off duty, and secretly prepared an expedition to destroy the colony's stores at Concord. But the attempt had for several weeks been expected; a strict watch had been kept; and signals were concerted to announce the first movement of troops for the country. SAMUEL ADAMS and HANCOCK, who had not yet left Lexington for Philadelphia, received a timely message from WARREN, and in consequence, the Committee of Safety removed a part of the public stores and secreted the cannon.

On Tuesday, the 18th, ten or more sergeants in disguise dispersed themselves through Cambridge and further west, to intercept all communication. In the following night, the grenadiers and light infantry, not less than eight hundred in number, the flower of the army at Boston, commanded by the incompetent Lieut.-Col. SMITH, crossed in the boats of the transport ships from the foot of the Common to East Cambridge. There they received a day's provisions, and near midnight, after wading through wet marshes, that are now covered by a stately town, they took the road through West Cambridge to Concord.

"They will miss their aim," said one of a party who observed their departure. "What aim?" asked Lord PERCY, who overheard the remark. "Why, the cannon at Concord," was the answer. PERCY hastened to GAGE, who instantly directed that no one should be suffered to leave the town. But WARREN had already, at ten o'clock, dispatched WILLIAM DAWES through Roxbury to Lexington, and at the same time desired PAUL REVERE to set off by way of Charlestown.

REVERE stopped only to engage a friend to raise the concerted signals, and five minutes before the sentinels received the order to prevent it, two friends rowed him past the Somerset man-of-war across Charles River. All was still, as suited the hour. The ship was winding with the young flood; the waning moon just peered above a clear horizon; while from a couple of lanterns in the tower of the North Church, the beacon streamed to the neighboring towns, as fast as light could travel.

A little beyond Charlestown Neck, REVERE was intercepted by two British officers on horseback; but being himself well mounted, he turned suddenly, and leading one of them into a clay pond, escaped from the other by the road to Medford. As he passed on, he waked the captain of the minute-men of that town, and continued to rouse almost every house on the way to Lexington.

The troops had not advanced far, when the firing of guns and ringing of bells announced that their expedition had been heralded before them; and SMITH sent back to demand a reinforcement.

On the morning of the 19th of April, between the hours of 12 and 1, the message from WARREN reached ADAMS and HANCOCK, who divined at once the object of the expedition. REVERE, therefore, and DAWES, joined by SAMUEL PRESCOTT, "a high son of liberty," from Concord, rode forward, calling up the inhabitants as they passed along, till in Lincoln they fell upon a party of British officers. REVERE and DAWES were seized and taken back to Lexington, where they were released; but PRESCOTT leaped over a low stone wall, and galloped on for Concord.

There, at about two in the morning, a peal from the belfry of the meeting-house called the inhabitants of the place to their town hall. They came forth, young and old, with their firelocks, ready to make good the resolute words of their town debates. Among the most alert was WILLIAM EMERSON the minister, with gun in hand, his powder-horn and pouch for balls slung over his shoulder. By his sermons and his prayers, he had so hallowed the enthusiasm of his flock, that they held the defence of their liberties a part of their covenant with God; his presence with arms, proved his sincerity and strengthened their sense of duty.

From daybreak to sunrise, the summons ran from house to house through Acton. Express messengers and volleys from minute-men spread the alarm. How children trembled as they were scared out of sleep by the cries! How wives with heaving breasts, bravely seconded their husbands; how the countrymen, forced suddenly to arm, without guides or counsellors, took instant counsel of their courage. The mighty chorus of voices rose from the scattered farmhouses, and as it were from the very ashes of the dead. Come forth, champions of liberty; now free your country; protect your sons and daughters, your wives and homesteads; rescue the houses of the God of your fathers, the franchises handed down from your ancestors. Now all is at stake; the battle is for all.

Lexington, in 1775, may have had 700 inhabitants, forming one parish, and having for their minister the learned and fervent JONAS CLARK, the bold inditer of patriotic state papers that may yet be read on their town records. In December, 1772, they had instructed their representative to demand "a radical and lasting redress of their grievances, for not through their neglect should the people be enslaved." A year later they spurned the use of tea. In 1774, at various town meetings, they voted "to increase their stock of ammunition," "to encourage military discipline, and to put themselves in a posture of defence against their enemies." In December they distributed to "the train band and alarm list" arms and ammunition, and resolved to "supply the training soldiers with bayonets."

At two in the morning, under the eye of the minister, and of HANCOCK and ADAMS, Lexington Common was alive with the minute men; and not with them only, but with the old men also, who were exempts, except in case of immediate danger to the town. The roll was called, and of militia and alarm men, about one hundred and thirty answered to their names. The captain, JOHN PARKER, ordered every one to load with powder and ball, but to take care not to be the first to fire. Messengers, sent to look for the British regulars, reported that there were no signs of their approach. A watch was therefore set, and the company dismissed with orders to come together at beat of drum. Some went to their own homes; some to the tavern, near the southeast corner of the common.

ADAMS and HANCOCK, whose proscription had already been divulged, and whose seizure was believed to be intended, were compelled by persuasion to retire towards Woburn.

The last stars were vanishing from night when the foremost party, led by PITCAIRN, a major of marines, was discovered advancing quickly and in silence. Alarm guns were fired and the drums beat, not a call to village husbandmen only, but the reveille to humanity. Less than seventy—perhaps less than sixty—obeyed the summons, and in sight of half as many boys and unarmed men, were paraded in two ranks, a few rods north of the meeting-house.

How often in that building had they, with renewed professions of their faith, looked up to God as the stay of their fathers, and the protector of their liberties! How often on that village green, hard by the burial place of their forefathers, had they pledged themselves to each other to combat manfully for their birthright inheritance of freedom! There they now stood side by side, under the provincial banner, with arms in their hands, silent and fearless, willing to fight for their privileges, scrupulous not to begin civil war, and as yet unsuspicious of immediate danger. The ground on which they trod was the altar of freedom, and they were to furnish its victims.

The British van, hearing the drum and the alarm guns, halted to load; the remaining companies came up; and at half an hour before sunrise, the advance party hurried forward at double quick time, almost upon a run, closely followed by the grenadiers. PITCAIRN rode in front, and when within five or six rods of the minute men, cried out: "Disperse, ye villains; ye rebels, disperse; lay down your arms; why don't you lay down your arms and disperse?" The main part of the countrymen stood motionless in the ranks, witnesses against aggression; too few to resist, too brave to fly. At this PITCAIRN discharged a pistol, and with a loud voice cried, "Fire." The order was instantly followed, first by a few guns, which did no execution, and then by a heavy, close and deadly discharge of musketry.

In the disparity of numbers, the Common was a field of murder, not of battle; PARKER, therefore, ordered his men to disperse. Then, and not till then, did a few of them, on their own impulse, return the British fire. These random shots of fugitives or dying men did no harm, except that PITCAIRN's horse was perhaps grazed, and a private of the 10th Light Infantry was touched slightly in the leg.

JONAS PARKER, the strongest and best wrestler in Lexington, had promised never to run from British troops; and he kept his vow. A wound brought him on his knees. Having discharged his gun, he was preparing to load it again, when as sound a heart as ever throbbed for freedom was stilled by a bayonet, and he lay on the post which he took at the morning's drum beat. So fell ISAAC MUZZEY, and so died the aged ROBERT MUNROE, the same who in 1758 had been an ensign at Louisburg. JONATHAN HARRINGTON, Junior, was struck in front of his own house on the north of the Common. His wife was at the window as he fell. With the blood gushing from his breast, he rose in her sight, tottered, fell again, then crawled on hands and knees towards his dwelling; she ran to meet him, but only reached him as he expired on their threshold. CALEB HARRINGTON, who had gone into the meeting-house for powder, was shot as he came out. SAMUEL HADLEY and JOHN BROWN were pursued and killed, after they had left the green. ASAHEL PORTER, of Woburn, who had been taken prisoner by the British on the march, endeavoring to escape, was shot within a few rods of the common.

Day came in all the beauty of an early Spring. The trees were budding; the grass growing rankly a full month before the time; the blue-bird and the robin gladdening the genial season, and calling forth the beams of the sun which on that morning shone with the warmth of Summer; but distress and horror gathered over the inhabitants of the peaceful town. There on the green, lay in death the gray-haired and the young; the grassy field was red "with the innocent blood of their brethren slain," crying unto God for vengeance from the ground.

Seven of the men of Lexington were killed; nine wounded; a quarter part of those who stood in arms on the green. These are the village heroes, who were more than of noble blood, proving by their spirit that they were of a race divine. They gave their lives in testimony to the rights of mankind, bequeathing to their country an assurance of success in the mighty struggle which they began. Their names are had in grateful remembrance, and the expanding millions of their countrymen renew and multiply their praise from generation to generation. They fulfilled their duty not from the accidental impulse of a moment; their action was the slowly ripened fruit of Providence and of time. The light that led them on was combined of rays from the whole history of the race; from the traditions of the Hebrews in the gray of the world's morning; from the heroes and sages of republican Greece and Rome; from the example of Him who laid down his life on the cross for the life of humanity; from the religious creed which proclaimed the divine presence in man, and on this truth as in a life-boat, floated the liberties of nations over the dark flood of the middle ages; from the customs of the Germans transmitted out of their forests to the councils of Saxon England; from the burning faith and courage of MARTIN LUTHER; from trust in the inevitable universality of God's sovereignty as taught by PAUL of Tarsus, and AUGUSTINE, through CALVIN and the divines of New-England; from the avenging fierceness of the Puritans, who dashed down the mitre on the ruins of the throne; from the bold dissent and creative self-assertion of the earliest emigrants to Massachusetts; from the statesmen who made, and the philosophers who expounded, the revolution of England; from the liberal spirit and analyzing inquisitiveness of the eighteenth century; from the cloud of witnesses of all the ages to the reality and the rightfulness of human freedom. All the centuries bowed themselves from the recesses of a past eternity to cheer in their sacrifice the lowly men who proved themselves worthy of their forerunners, and whose children rise up and call them blessed.

Heedless of his own danger, SAMUEL ADAMS, with the voice of a prophet, exclaimed. "Oh! what a glorious morning is this!" for he saw that his country's independence was rapidly hastening on, and, like COLUMBUS in the tempest, knew that the storm did but bear him the more swiftly towards the undiscovered world.

Mr. BANCROFT concluded amid much applause, and was unanimously voted the thanks of the Society, which then adjourned.

Burning of the Steamer Sultan on the Mississippi—Twenty to Thirty Lives Lost.

We have already announced to our readers the burning of the steamer Sultan on the Mississippi, near Genevieve, on Friday morning last. We take the following particulars from the St. Louis Democrat:

"When five miles above St. Genevieve, early on Friday morning, the boat was discovered to be on fire. The fire originated in the watchman's locker. The boat was rounded to, made towards the shore, and fastened to a fallen tree. The current, however, being very powerful, carried the boat into the stream, together with the tree to which she was attached by her line, before any one could escape. Some jumped overboard, a portion of whom were drowned, while others, who clung to the stage planks or pieces of furniture, were saved. The number of persons supposed to have been on the boat at the time of the disaster was about sixty-eight, as follows: Captain, 1; clerks, 2; engineers, 4; pilots, 2; carpenter, 1; porter, 1; mate, 1; watchman, 1; stewards, 2, cooks, 3; cabin boys, 4; deck crew, 30; passengers, about 15, and 1 child.

SUPPOSED TO BE LOST.—Joseph Blackburn, watchman; David D. Moore, first clerk; Martin Dickson, second steward; Thomas Cannon, first pantryman; Dennis Callahan, second pantryman; Daniel McGarvey, fireman; Mr. Pogue, two sons and their wives; ——— Delaney, chambermaid.

Several deck hands, firemen, and passengers, two cabin boys, the barkeeper, &c., supposed also to be lost.

Henry Eli, the pilot, was conveyed to St. Genevieve, and is reported dead since of his injuries.

THOSE KNOWN TO BE SAVED.—Captain P. E. Hannum, seriously burned; H. W. Fairfowl, engineer, slightly burned; Ira M. Blessing, second engineer; H. P. Blessing, assistant engineer, slightly burned; Frank Harman, assistant engineer; Wm. Gray, pilot; Fred Dowe, mate; D. A. Mahoney, carpenter; Mr. Barns, second clerk; Martin Foy, steward; ———, second steward; James Wood, Henry Parish, and Henry Meyers, cooks; George Howard, porter and barber.

It is said that out of all who were in the Texas, only two men escaped.

We understand that a Mr. POGUE, his two sons, and their wives and families, formerly from Lagrange, on their way to make their homes in Texas, were among the passengers. Nothing definite was heard of their fate, it is feared that some of them are lost.

It is mentioned as a rumor, that while the plank which supported the two ladies, the child, and the barber, was floating along safely, a deck-hand took hold of and insisted upon getting on it, to the imminent risk of capsizing it and drowning those whom it supported, and that all the remonstrances failing, the barber drew his knife and cut the man's throat, which was the only method left, it is supposed, of getting rid of him.

A handkerchief, which was picked up by the porter, and which may have belonged to one of the lost, is in our possession, and can be recovered by calling at this office. In a corner of it is the name M. A. JOHNSTON, 1857.

The Sultan had a cargo of at least 800 tons on board, which was all, or nearly all, insured, although the "freight list" was not. It consisted of pork, lard and flour, principally, and 1,000 pigs lead, &c. The boat was valued at $20,000, or over, and was insured (not here) for $17,000. She was owned partly by Capt. HANNUM, but principally by other parties of this city.

At last accounts the hull was lying on a bar opposite St. Genevieve, and burned nearly to the water's edge. A large quantity of its contents may be recovered in a damaged condition.

The Outrage upon American Missionaries in Syria.

ARREST AND PUNISHMENT OF THE CRIMINALS.

Our readers have not forgotten the dreadful outrages recently committed upon the family of Mr. DICKSON, American citizens residing in Jaffa. As soon as they were related to Mr. EDWIN DE LEON, our Consul-General for Egypt and its dependencies, resident at Alexandria, he at once embarked on board the Austrian steamer and started for Jaffa to investigate the affair. His expedition resulted in the arrest and punishment of the criminals, as we learn from the following letter published in the Charleston Mercury. The writer, who addresses a relative in Charleston, accompanied Mr. DE LEON on the expedition which he thus describes:

ALEXANDRIA, (Egypt,) Monday, Feb. 22, 1858.

* * * We should have reached Jaffa in about twenty-four hours, but a violent gale, which arose immediately after our departure, beat us to the northward, and, after very narrowly escaping shipwreck, in consequence of breaking one of our engines, we arrived only Tuesday morning at Beirut. It is a very ill wind which blows no good. Although Beirut was not our destination, Mr. DE LEON availed himself of his presence there to pay a visit to the Pasha, who exercises a general jurisdiction over Syria, and to represent to him personally (the American Consulate at Beirut being at present vacant, and the duties of the Consulate performed only through courtesy by Mr. MOORE, the English Consul-General) the necessity of taking active and efficient means to detect the perpetrators of these crimes. The conference was a very earnest one, and the Pasha promised to send the most stringent orders to Jerusalem and Jaffa on the subject. These orders were sent, and, as we afterwards learned, proved very effectual in stirring up the zeal of the Jaffa authorities.

We were compelled to remain in Beirut until Thursday evening, when we again embarked on board the French steamer, and this time landed safely in Jaffa on Friday morning.

As soon as we arrived, Mr. DE LEON had a conversation with our Consul, Dr. GORHAM, from whom we learned the detail of these atrocities, which it were mere barbarity to inflict upon you; and from this conversation, as well as from others, which I myself had with some intelligent residents, I conceived the opinion that just in proportion as it was necessary to teach a severe lesson to these barbarians, and to strike terror into similar evil-doers, in the same degree would it be an arduous, a dangerous, and perhaps unsuccessful task. There seemed to be a general feeling of distrust among the European residents in Jaffa, and even among the resident Oriental Christians under the various European protections—a distrust alike of the people and the Government, and a distrust which, it must be confessed, recent events seemed to justify. Several atrocious crimes against European life and property (particularly a most scandalous affair at Nablouse) had gone unavenged; and the English Bishop of Jerusalem, in a pastoral letter published only a short time since, had gone so far as to say that if matters continued in Palestine as they had been during the past two years, we might expect a repetition here of the scenes in India. And this combination of burglary, murder and outrage appeared like a confirmation of the prophecy. Nevertheless, our Consul-General was by no means dismayed, nor doubtful of success.

It is but justice to Dr. GORHAM, our acting Consul at Jaffa, to say, that up to the time of Mr. DE LEON's arrival he had done everything in his power to have the criminals dragged to light, and that after Mr. D.'s arrival he heartily coöperated in all the measures which the superior experience of the former in Turkish diplomacy induced him to suggest.

The mere fact that Mr. D.'s arrival was of considerable importance, and created a decided sensation among the authorities. The Pasha of Jerusalem had sent down, previous to that, one of his Cabinet—by name AGAR EFFENDI—to assist the "Caimacan," or Governor of Jaffa, in this affair; and they immediately paid a visit of ceremony to the Consul-General, who, in obedience to Eastern etiquette, made it a visit of ceremony, and "nothing more."

The next day was fixed for a business conference with the Medjlis, which is composed of the chief dignitaries of the town, presided over by the Governor, and is a mixed body, partly legislative, partly judicial. Thither we repaired—the Consul-General, the Consul and their suite, while your humble servant had privilege of attending in the capacity of Secretary. At the commencement of the conference, a little incident occurred, seemingly trifling, but characteristic. It is the universal custom of the Orientals before proceeding to business, to hand pipes and coffee, the refusal of which is looked upon as a sign of contempt, or of high displeasure. At Mr. DE LEON's suggestion, when these were handed to us, they were refused. A buzz of surprise and excitement pervaded the divans upon this refusal. It had struck the key-note of our proceedings; we had not come to trifle or to temporise, and every one became anxiously attentive to what was about to be said. Dr. GORHAM first addressed the Medjlis, reminding them that this was the third or fourth time he had met them upon this affair; that they had not advanced one step in the discovery of the criminals; that they had displayed the most culpable negligence; and declaring that the American Government would neither wait for ever, nor was wanting either in means or inclination to avenge the life and honor of its citizens, with other words to that effect.

Mr. DE LEON followed, approving and strengthening what his colleague had advanced; expostulating in the sternest manner with the autorities for thus dallying with justice, and denouncing upon the Turkish authorities (should they not at once bring forth the authors of these horrid crimes to condign punishment) the speedy vengeance of the American Government. This address was couched in no measured terms; and one would have thought, to judge by its tone as well as by the effect produced upon the Medjlis, that the Consul-General was supported by a fleet of war in the harbor, instead of being an official of peace—unarmed—amongst adversaries. The Medjlis protested on their part, that they had shown no lack of zeal, nor want of good disposition, concluding resignedly with the usual Mahommedan phrase—"If it be the will of God—we will find the men." And so broke up the conference.

The next day we learned the good effects of this stormy meeting. The Governor had raised a mounted police force, and seemed to begin in earnest a search after the criminals in the bazaars. The omne ignotum of undefined evil to come produced a general impression, which was in our favor. Meantime, the Consuls were not idle. The Consul-General, as you know, is a lawyer by profession and practice; and he addressed himself to the various members of Mr. DICKSON's family in order to sift the evidence, and, if possible, get a clue for ourselves; and, with the assistance of Dr. GORHAM, was so successful as to eliminate a chain of evidence which pointed indisputably to one of the criminals, and, of course, mediately to the rest. This evidence was then made up in proper form to be handed to the Medjlis.

In the interval, we learned that several arrests had been made, and among others, that of the person above alluded to.

Upon a subsequent day the Consuls held a second conference with the Medjlis, at which, after protesting against its being their duty to prepare the apparatus of detection, yet in order to allow no pretext of ignorance, they submitted the evidence which they had prepared, and which was received with seeming satisfaction.

At this juncture, the orders from Beirut seemed to have arrived at Jerusalem, for the Pasha of that city sent now down to Jaffa another officer—more capable and more energetic than the first—but also too fanatical a Mussulman to be very zealous in doing justice to the "infidel dogs." He tried what he could to set additional obstacles in the way, but the case was too clear for his subtility and want of inclination, and he finally gave in his coöperation also.

The criminal already arrested confessed the names of his four accomplices. Three of these were peasant (Fellah) Arabs from the neighborhood, and were captured without much trouble by the mounted police of the Governor. The fifth man, however, it was neither so easy to find nor to arrest; and in the steps which the authorities took in his case, they have better manifested their newly learned respect for American power than by any other circumstance. This person was a Bedouin, a member of a powerful tribe, to whose hostility even the Government is not indifferent. Nevertheless they raised an extra large force, surprised and captured the chief of this tribe, and brought him to Jaffa, where he now lies in irons as a hostage, until he produces the guilty member of his clan.

It was a matter of regret to me that I could not remain long enough in Jaffa to witness the last act in the drama—the execution of the criminals. This stays upon the firman from Constantinople, which is a necessary condition of all capital punishments in the provinces of the Ottoman Porte; but which will, doubtless, be speedily forwarded to Jaffa by our Chargé and Consul-General at the Imperial "Stamboul."

Consumers of Paint throughout the United States are invited to test the advantage of this Paint over that made from Lead—
FIRST—It is a clear and brilliant white, surpassing Lead in color as well as durability.
SECOND—It does not contain poisonous acids, which render apartments newly painted with Lead so unwholesome, causing painters' colic, &c., &c.
THIRD—It will not change color by exposure to bad air or gases, so that it lasts longer than Lead.
FOURTH—Although its first cost is rather greater than that of Lead, it will prove more economical in the end.
This Zinc can be used for old or new work wherever a durable pure white paint is wanted.
It should not be adulterated with American Zinc, as it renders it thin and injures the color.

STRAW GOODS.
SPRING AND SUMMER STYLES, 1858.
A. LELAND & CO.,
No. 190 Broadway,
HAVE NOW IN STORE, AND ARE RECEIVING
From their own manufactory, the largest and most varied assortment of ever offered in this market, and are constantly making additions in the way of New Styles, and shall continue to do so as the season advances which has been our uniform custom for years, feeling confident that as the season advances our customers will require something different from the stereotyped edition of the month previous; and one thing we would assure our customers, that when we offer a new style they may depend on its entire originality, as we do not offer an old style resurrected with a new name. The well-known superior quality and finish of the goods we have offered for years render it unnecessary for us to do more than submit them to the inspection of the most fastidious taste. We have now in preparation various shades of colors to suit the gradations of the advancing season, and can safely promise to our customers not only originality of design, but variety of style to suite every taste. We would particularly call the attention of the trade to our ample stock of men's and boys' silver gray shades; men's and boys' tan shades; men's and boys' maroon shades; men's and boys' mixed colored Leghorns; men's and boys' mixed colored sewed braids, together with a complete assortment of hats in the natural color, which will be offered at prices as low as any that have been sold at auction.
STRAW HATS
A. L. & CO. would particularly call the attention of the trade to their large variety of ladies' colored and white riding hats, misses' colored and white bloomers, new shapes. Children's colored and white hats and caps. Each shade of color being trimmed with ribbons, &c., imported expressly to match the color of the hat.
A. L. & CO. can confidently assert they have never before offered so great a variety of styles, which will be offered at prices that cannot fail to suit the closest trade.

THE BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM IN New England, perhaps, is THE SPRINGFIELD (Mass.) REPUBLICAN. Its circulation is greater than that of any other paper out of Boston, and is exceeded by only a few of the journals of that city. It is taken all up the Connecticut Valley, and through the populous towns and villages of Western Massachusetts. For Manufactures, Trade, Real Estate, Schools, Books, &c., it is an especially valuable advertising sheet, as it goes into all the best families, and among the active business men of interior New-England. Address SAMUEL BOWLES & CO., Springfield, Mass.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HORSE-TAMING SECRET FOR TAMING AND BREAKING HORSES.—The proprietor of the above invaluable secret as now being practiced with such eminent success in England and France, has been induced by numerous friends to offer the same to the American public. By the use of it the most wild and vicious animal can be perfectly tamed and subdued in fifteen minutes, without the least injury to the horse. It is equally applicable for the breaking of young horses. The great notoriety and success our talented countryman has obtained for it in Europe renders further notice unnecessary. The secret with directions forwarded to any address for $1, remitted to JAMES RUFUS SCOTT, Brooklyn City, N. Y.

PLATED CAKE-BASKETS FOR FIVE DOLLARS!—I have very fine plated Cake-Baskets at retail, with a general assortment of plated goods, and although my store is "down-town," I will try to make it for the interest of patrons to call and purchase of LUCIUS HART, No. 8 Burling-slip.

It describes the causes and effects of all diseases of a delicate nature; it contains copious instructions for the perfect restoration of those who are prevented by impediments from entering into the married state, and for the permanent cure of all diseases arising from imprudences, with observations on the direful results of early abuse; also a professional dissertation, illustrating the results of chemical tests, and examination of the spermatozoa by the patentee's newly-constructed microscope, with powerful lenses.

Price 25 cents. Sent free of postage to any part of the country.

This invaluable work may be obtained, as well as the Triesemar, from Dr BARROW, No. 157 Prince-st., few blocks west of Broadway, New-York. To be consulted as usual, from 11 A. M. till 2 P. M., and from 4 till 8 in the evening.

THE MURDER OF CHARLES L. SAMUEL.

Coroner's Inquest Continued—Where Smithson was at the Time of the Murder.

The Coroner's investigation into the cause of the death of Charles L. Samuel was resumed at 11½ o'clock yesterday morning, at the Second Ward Station-House. Two Jurors were absent when the inquest was reopened, but they were not waited for. All the witnesses except the one undergoing examination were excluded from the room.

Edward H. Smithson was first sworn—I live in New-York; I have lived in no particular place for the last five weeks; I take my meals down town; I have been a clerk in a law office, Van Wagenen & Brede's, No. 5 Beekman-street, for nine months past; my parents reside at Dublin, Ireland; for the last five weeks I have slept sometimes in the Cooper House, Broadway, and sometimes at the Globe Hotel, in William street; I have not been at [illegible] for the last year; I have not been in Brooklyn for the last five weeks; I was in Williamsburg once; I do not know where the Fulton Hotel is; I remember now that I was in Brooklyn within two weeks past, for the purpose of serving legal papers on Miss Annie Ellers; the gentleman's name who gave me the papers is Doring; he lives in Roosevelt-street, near Chatham; I did not serve the papers in Brooklyn; I afterwards served them in the dining saloon corner of John and William streets; I first went to the saloon, and did not find Miss Ellers; I then went to Brooklyn after her, and did not find her; I came back, and found her in the saloon; I have not seen Samuels within the last five weeks in New-York; I have never been to any place of amusement in New-York with Mr. Samuel; I crossed the Wall-street ferry and back again with Samuels two years ago; he and I did not on that occasion go in anywhere to drink; we got cigars in a cigar-store in Brooklyn; I did not see Samuels the day I served the papers; I last saw him about seven months ago, passing him on the opposite side of Broadway; a week ago Saturday I spent the day at No. 4 Great Jones-street, with my brother; we were doing carpenter-work; I might have gone out for nails, some time between eight A. M. and five P. M.; the next day (Sunday) I attended the prayer meeting at Burton's Theatre; on Saturday I left Great Jones-street about five o'clock, walked down Broadway, saw a notice for another prayer-meeting at No. 659 Broadway, and went in; I staid till six o'clock, and then walked down to Meschutt's, under Lafayette Hall, to get tea; I saw no one from Brooklyn there; I remained there fifteen or twenty minutes; I then went to the corner of Broome and Elizabeth streets, to the Baptist Church; when it was out, about nine o'clock, I went directly home and went to bed; I stopped at No. 489 Pearl-street that night; the next day, after attending Burton's Theatre prayer-meeting, I went and took dinner at Gould's, in Fulton-street; I then went up Broadway, and went to the same church where I went Saturday afternoon; in the evening I went to Dr. Nott's Church, Broome-st., again; after that I went home to No 686 Broadway with a friend, Joseph Bedard, and staid all night; Monday after breakfast I went to No. 4 Great Jones-street, and have worked there every day this week; I always staid till after my brother left; I staid Monday till five o'clock, and then took supper at Meschutt's; I then went to hear some converts give their experience at Dr. Nott's Church in Broome-street; I remained till a little after nine o'clock, and then went to No. 489 Pearl-street and went to bed; Tuesday morning I went to Great Jones-street again, and the same thing happened as on the day before; Wednesday and Thursday the same; on those days I went nowhere except to Great Jones-street, the Baptist Church, and home; Friday morning I first heard of the death of Samuel; that day I worked all day at Great Jones-street till half-past eleven o'clock at night; I am twenty years of age; I never had any dispute with Mr. Samuel; I thought too much of him to do anything to hurt his feelings; I never threatened him, and always spoke in the highest terms of him; I did not have any disagreement with Miss Curtis; I knew she preferred Samuel to me, and therefore I left off going there; I never thought of marriage; I was only about eighteen years old; she often spoke to me very abruptly; I never had any disagreement with Miss Drew; she never, as far as I can recollect, asked me to discontinue my visits to her; I discontinued them, I suppose, because I found somebody I liked a little better; I know no one who saw Samuels from the Saturday night previous to the murder up to the time when it is supposed to have been committed; I know of no one who visited at Miss Curtis' house who might have had any ill-feeling against him on account of Miss Curtis' preference for him; I know of no one who ever was at enmity with Samuel; I never had any ill-feeling towards Miss Curtis till I read in this morning's paper that she said I was dissipated—a thing I never practiced in Brooklyn; I would not hurt her; I would not put a pin against her.

James Scally, sworn—I live at No. 489 Pearl-street; I keep a boarding house; I know Smithson; he has lodged with me; he generally came in about 10 o'clock; a week ago Saturday he came in a little after 10 o'clock; the next night he came in before 10 o'clock; I think on Tuesday night he came in about 10 o'clock; Wednesday night I believe he was in between 9 and 10 o'clock; he didn't go out on any of those nights after he went to bed; he slept in the same room with other men, but no others came in with him; he stayed in the house every night from that Saturday night to the next Wednesday night; he slept there a week ago Sunday night; he has lodged with me for more than two weeks past nightly, with the exception of last night and another night previous to a week ago Saturday.

Capt. Wm. W. Davis, recalled—From five daguerreotypes presented to him he selected the likeness of Samuels and said it resembled the person whom he saw Wednesday night, but he could not swear positively that it was a representation of the same person.

Alexander Billings, recalled—Selected the daguerreotype of a friend of Samuel's family, and said it most resembled the person whom he saw in South-street Wednesday night; the likeness of Samuel most resembled the corpse which he had seen.

Abraham M. Kirby—I live at the corner of Myrtle-avenue and Duffield-street Brooklyn; I am in an insurance office in New-York; I knew Samuel; I last saw him about three weeks ago; I have no reason to suspect any one in connection with him.

Hassan H. Wheeler, John R. Halsey, Theodore L. Belcher, Lewis L. Belcher, being sworn, severally testified that they all resided in Brooklyn; they had not seen the deceased for three or four weeks prior to his death; they knew nothing touching his murder.

Stephen B. Hart, recalled—I last saw the deceased on Sunday, a week ago, in the evening between seven and eight o'clock; I saw him at the Fulton Hotel in South-street; I only saw him a few minutes; I think it was the deceased from the similarity between the person I saw alive and the dead body; the peculiarity of the gaiters attracted my notice particularly. [Several daguerreotypes were shown to the witness, among which was one of the deceased. He selected the daguerreotype of another person as being that of the deceased.] The shoes and the hair of the deceased were the only things about him that I particularly noticed. [The daguerreotype of the deceased being indicated to the witness, he stated that he was unable to identify it as that of the person he saw at the Fulton Hotel.]

Frank Howard, the bar-tender at the Fulton Hotel, recalled—[The same daguerreotypes shown to the previous witness were given to the witness to examine; he selected the daguerreotype of the deceased as that of the person he saw in the Fulton Hotel a week ago last Wednesday afternoon;] I cannot swear positively that the daguerreotype of young Samuel is that of the person I saw; I never saw Samuel till the Wednesday afternoon referred to; I think the dead body I saw here last Saturday is that of the young man I saw at the hotel.

John M. Curry, sworn—I am attached to the Second Ward Hotel; I took the body of the deceased out of the water at the foot of Burling-slip; I first saw the body at three o'clock, but did not take it out till about dark, as I left it there for the Coroner to come and see it; Michael Knowles met me in Fulton-street, and told me of his having fished up the body; he told me that he grappled it up at the foot of Beekman-street; when I arrived at where the body lay I saw nothing but a rope, with which it was fastened to the end of a small boat; upon attempting to lift it up the feet came up first; I soon saw that a stone had been lashed to the body, and my impression at once was that a murder had been committed; I then asked him particularly as to where he found the body; he said that he found it just above Beekman-street, on the upper side of the pier; he seemed anxious to get rid of the body, but I detained him until dark, waiting for the Coroner; as no Coroner appeared I took it out of the water and placing it on a cart had it removed to the Second Ward Station-house.

By Jurors—I saw nothing of Cornelius Desmond, the companion of Knowles; I did not know that Knowles had any companion until two or three days afterwards; the pantaloons pockets were turned inside out when I raised the body out of the water; no one touched the body after I first saw it until it was taken out of the water; I had suspicion of Knowles at the time; he said that the current and the interference of a ferry-boat compelled him to land the body where he showed it to me; upon thinking on the matter afterwards I saw that his statements must be erroneous, and then I thought his conduct very strange; I have heard Officer Nevin state that Knowles went out in his boat off the dock and dropped a stone where he alleged he had grappled up the body.

Joseph Bodard, sworn—I live at No. 686 Broadway; I know Smithson; he slept in my place a week ago last Sunday evening; he came in between nine and ten o'clock; I keep a private house; Smithson was an old acquaintance of mine, and for this reason came to my house.

Emma Augusta Duff, sworn—I live at No. 16 Fulton-avenue; my mother keeps a boarding-house; Mr. Smithson boarded at our house between six and seven months; he left there about a year ago; he was not regular in his habits, but very dissipated; frequently he came home intoxicated; one afternoon he was standing on the front stoop and my cousin, who was standing with him, said: "There goes Mr. Samuel;" to which Smithson replied—"Yes, I see, I will have my revenge on him some day;" it is about six months since I saw Smithson; when I first heard of the death of Mr. Samuel, the remark of Smithson occurred to me, and I thought he had carried his threat into execution; Smithson was quarrelsome.

By Jurors—I was 14 years of age last October; the [illegible] of Smithson I have alluded to, was made [illegible] ago; he made no explanation as to what he wanted revenge for; he used the word revenge; I was on friendly terms with Smithson while he was at our house; I knew Mr. Samuel; I never told Samuel of the remark; the only person I ever told was my mother; he left our house about a month after making the remark; my mother dismissed him; he did not pay his board and still owes for it; my mother and he had no quarrel when he left.

Emma Frances Mayo, sworn: I live at No. 24 Myrtle-avenue; Miss Duff is a cousin of mine; I recollect standing at one time on the front stoop of Mrs. Duff's house in company of my cousin and Smithson; I remarked to my cousin that "there goes Mr. Samuel;" Smithson said, "yes, I see, I will have my revenge on him yet;" I asked him what he meant, to which he made no reply, but immediately went out of the gate; I think it was two years ago when this occurred; I have seen Smithson intoxicated twice; he behaved himself well generally; he made propositions to a young lady and wrote letters which showed him to be a bad young man; I asked the young lady what the proposition was, and she replied it was too obscene to mention; the last time I saw Smithson was about seven weeks ago; he was then coming down Tillary street towards Fulton; I left my aunt's house a year ago last August; I knew Miss Curtis; the reason Miss Curtis discarded him was because he got intoxicated; I heard my aunt say he was dissipated, and I heard others in the house make the same remark; if he had paid his board bill, I think my aunt would have allowed him to remain, notwithstanding his dissipated habits.

The Coroner here remarked that the Deputy-Superintendent of Police of Brooklyn had sent him a note, requesting an adjournment of the inquest for several days, as he believed in that time they could get hold of some facts leading to the detection of the real murderers. Upon this suggestion, and there being no more witnesses to examine, on motion of one of the Jurors, the inquest was adjourned till next Monday morning, at 11 o'clock. The parents of young Samuel were present yesterday, as on the previous days.

It was ordered that Smithson should be detained for the present in charge of an officer. The prisoner Curtis was removed to the place for detention of witnesses at No. 88 White-street. The removal was considered expedient because of his sufferings from his late attack of delirium tremens.

The father of young Samuel assures us that the statements of a correspondent in yesterday's Times, concerning his son, were entirely incorrect, and convey a very erroneous impression of his character. He says that he was not fond of display, and that, although always ready to pay his share in any entertainments, and to invite his friends and associates to partake of his hospitality, he was not in the habit of dissipation or of visiting bar-rooms on the East River or elsewhere. He does not believe that the story of his carrying and displaying shop-bills, resembling bank-bills, has any foundation whatever,—except that on one occasion he took from the store-drawer two counterfeit bills, which had been placed there and marked for purposes of comparison, and carried them in his wallet for a day or two.

The report of his having once attempted to commit suicide, his father says, is also untrue. Some ten years ago,—when quite small,—he got in the habit of staying away from home, playing in boats on Greenwood Bay, and sleeping in the fields, in boyish imitation of Robinson Crusoe, whose adventures he had been reading. And on one occasion, to escape the punishment which he expected upon his return, he pretended to have taken laudanum, rubbing it upon his face and clothes,—and for a time feigned insensibility. But examination proved that the whole thing was a sham.

His father repeated the statement which he made upon the inquest, that he was upright in his character, correct in his habits, and as excellent a son as any one could wish. He was resolute, reckless of danger, and energetic in the accomplishment of whatever he undertook. His father has no doubt that he was murdered soon after 11 o'clock on Saturday night, while going from Tillary-street to his house in Adams-street.

In regard to this matter we have also received the following communication:

Brooklyn, Tuesday, April 6, 1858.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The communication signed "G." has plainly been written to influence a false theory with regard to the murder of young Samuel. It is also evidently from the pen of an illiterate person, and, therefore, most probably not by one of his associates.

The undersigned were some of the friends of the deceased. During the whole course of their acquaintance with him they never knew him to make the displays adverted to by your anonymous correspondent and do not believe him to have been capable of them. The story of the "queer" is foolish and untrue, and that of the alleged attempt at suicide will be explained by his father during the course of the present investigation. We are sorry that such puerile stories should find their way into the papers.

Police Intelligence.

Another Gift Enterprize Broken Up.—Joel Rogers and David Pierce, both young men, were arrested yesterday by the Mayor's Police, charged with being engaged in a swindling gift concern. The accused issued a newspaper designated the Casket of Diamonds, promising to each person who paid one year's subscription in advance, diamonds valued from $300 to $20,000. The office was in the sixth-story of No. 308 Broadway. The officers found there the accused, two rickety desks, two old chairs, and a bundle of the Casket of Diamonds. Not a gleam of a diamond was to be seen. The arrested parties were taken before the Mayor. They stated that since the recent onslaught on Gift Enterprises they had deemed it advisable to withdraw from the business, and previous to their arrest they had been doing all they could to bring their affairs to a speedy settlement. They empowered the Mayor to take from the Post-Office all letters addressed to them in future. Upon which they were discharged. A newspaper-carrier testified that he had delivered to the accused on an average, some fifty to sixty letters a day. Only one number of the paper has ever been issued.

Charles Turner Charged with Abstracting Papers from the Street Commissioners Office.—Barnabas S. Adams, Messenger attached to the Street Commissioner's Office, made an affidavit before the Mayor yesterday, charging Charles Turner, Deputy Street Commissioner under Mr. Devlin, with abstracting a package of papers from the safe of the office. Adams alleges that he was in the office alone and that Mr. Turner and another gentleman came in together. Mr. Turner stated that he had come after a paper in the safe. The Messenger replied that he should not touch any papers in the office, and that if he attempted to do so, he would call an officer and have him arrested. Mr. Turner paying no attention to the remark, coolly proceeded to the safe, and taking a key from his pocket, unlocked it, and helped himself to a package of papers inside. The Messenger raised the window to call an officer, but none was in sight. By this time Mr. Turner had locked the safe and was proceeding to leave, when the Messenger told him to give up the papers. Mr. Turner said, "I have not got any papers," and immediately went away. Upon the affidavit of Adams, the Mayor issued a warrant for the arrest of Turner. Being brought before the Mayor, Turner stated that the safe was a private one, and that he had taken out a paper which he needed in a lawsuit, in which he was interested. The Mayor allowed him to depart on his own recognizance till this morning, when an examination will be had.

Conjugal Unhappiness—A Curious Case.—Burtis Eckleson, residing at No. 66 Carmine street, was brought before Justice Quackenbush yesterday, on a charge of abandonment, preferred by his wife Anne, who stated that she had been married but a little over a year. The evidence given at the examination was very conflicting, but showed conclusively that the married pair had recently quarrelled. It was sworn for the defence that the wife had told the husband to clear out and not come back again under penalty of a severe thrashing, and that he obeyed the command instantly, packed up his trunk and left. The lady, however, alleges that on last Saturday evening, the husband sent her on an errand to a certain house, on reaching which she was thrust into an upper room, and there found a large man who prevented her from leaving, and that while so detained her husband and three other men came in and charged her with improper conduct. The affair, the wife says, was a conspiracy against her reputation. The examination is to be continued further.

Fires.

In Fifty-third-street.—At 1 o'clock yesterday morning, a fire was discovered in the old one-story frame building in Fifty-third-street, near Ninth-avenue, owned and occupied by John Shaff as a junk-shop. The building was entirely consumed. Mr. Shaff estimates his loss at $300, on which there is an insurance of $200 in the Hamilton Insurance Company. The fire communicated to the adjoining building, owned and occupied by John Opernan. Mr. Opernan's loss was $200. Insured for $300 in the Hamilton Insurance Company. The fire is supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

Fire on Shipboard.—At a few minutes to 12 o'clock Monday evening, Officer Seymour, of the Thirteenth Ward, observed a fire on the deck of the schooner Albert Jameston, lying at the foot of Delancey-street. The fire proved to be caused by the slaking of a barrel of lime, produced by a shower of rain. The officer alarmed the hands on board, and the fire was speedily extinguished, before any material damage was done.

In East Fourteenth-street.—About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the attic of G. B. House's boarding-house, No. 106 East Fourteenth-street. It was soon extinguished. Damage about $1,500, by fire and water; fully insured.

LONG ISLAND.

THE ELECTION IN BROOKLYN.

Arrest of an Alderman Elect for Illegal Voting—His Discharge by the County Judge.

The first independent Charter Election in this city under the act of 1857, took place yesterday, when one Alderman, and one Supervisor and one Constable was elected in each Ward, and one Assessor in each of the odd Wards. In most of the Wards but little interest was manifested in the election, and as a consequence, there was not a very large vote cast.

In several of the Wards there were local issues, and in these Wards the contest was spirited, and a respectable vote was cast. So far as can be ascertained, it is believed that in the next Board of Aldermen the Democrats will have a majority of two, as will be seen by the list below.

The Board of Supervisors will be largely Democratic, as now.

The Election passed off without any serious disturbance—the presence of 85 men from New-York doubtless had a good effect. A number of illegal voters were arrested, and among them Pat Hogan, the successful candidate for Alderman in the Twelfth Ward, was arrested for voting twice at the same polling place. He was committed to the cells, and Judge Morris was promptly on hand, issued a habeas corpus, and the captain of the Precinct where he was arrested says he was discharged on $200 bail, without any return being made to the writ.

The swill-milk question was not sufficiently agitated in the Seventh Ward, and McDonald, an independent Democrat, was elected by a small plurality.

The result of the election for Aldermen is as follows:

Wards.		Wards.
1—Daniel D. Whitney	D.	10—John L. Douglass	D.

Jamaica Town Election.

The whole National Democratic ticket is elected over the Anti-Lecompton ticket, by majorities ranging from 80 to 200.

Brooklyn Items.

The election in Brooklyn went off spiritedly yesterday. So far as we have heard, the Democrats polled a pretty heavy vote and carried the City. The Republicans attended to their private business and—were beaten in consequence. The public attention was turned more particularly to the Nineteenth Ward than to any other—where the cow-stable and distillery milk was the open issue—Alderman Frederick Scholes made a capital run, but his opposition to these nuisances called out the full vote of the Democrats against him, and his opponent, Mr. Cockroft, was elected. The same issue was less distinctly made in the Seventh Ward, but it brought out every voter in favor of their continuance, while the Opposition let the thing go by default. The Americans in this Ward refused to unite with the Republicans, generally voting for the present incumbent, Mr. Rowe. The vote at sundown, when the polls were closed, stood—for Turner, Republican, 291; for Rowe, regular Democrat, 304; for Michael McDonald, split Democrat, 367—electing McDonald. On the whole, it is evident from the issue of yesterday's work that the people of the Seventh and Nineteenth Wards enjoy the odor of the cow-stables and religiously believe in swill milk. About half the Democratic voters cast their ballots for financial City officers. As only one ticket was run, all these are elected; but as no vacancy exists for the next 16 months, it only amounts to giving the newly elected men the privilege of contesting the seats of the incumbents, paying their own costs and being surely defeated in the Courts.

Mob-Law in Minnesota.—Mrs. Jane G. Swisshelm, who formerly edited a reformatory paper in Pittsburg, started a weekly called the Visitor, at St. Cloud, Minnesota, a few months since. Her free-and-easy comments on men and public affairs have given offence; and on the night of the 24th ult. her office was entered by a mob, who destroyed the press, pied the type, and cast part of it into the river. A notice was left on the table, warning the lady to refrain from repeating her offences in that quarter under pain of a severer penalty. A meeting of respectable citizens was held next day, at which Mrs. Swisshelm was invited to speak. Resolutions to sustain the paper and the editor were passed with enthusiasm, and the paper still goes on. No clue to the detection of the rioters has been discovered.

Tuesday, April 6—P. M.

The terms for Exchange for the Boston steamer closed this afternoon at 109@109½ on London, with most of the business done at 109@109¼ ℔ cent., and the market dull. The advance since last week's packet has checked the freedom of demand from trade remitters, and the present mail will be a light one from this City. The Money Market keeps very easy, and the Bank Statement of this morning is received, on the Street, as a fair index to the gradual improvement in trade. The Foreign advices received by the Portland steamer report quiet and ease in the London market for money; and as political affairs are quiet and Gold still accumulating in the Bank of England, another reduction of interest by that establishment seems not improbable. The Funds continue firm, and although Consols have ruled of late so near par as to forbid any considerable gain on present prices, the quotation comes a fraction stiffer by this opportunity. The least favorable feature in the news for this side is the continued dullness in the Grain markets, though against this may be set off the advance in Cotton and rather favorable reports from Manchester. The Halifax steamer may be telegraphed in the course of the night, with three days' later news; but her dispatches are not fully due, this season of the year, before Wednesday evening.

There was quite a revival in the actual business registered at the Stock Exchange to-day. The printed list, it will be noticed, is something like the daily reports at the close of February in the amount of sales; though not near the same buoyant prices have yet been attained. The advance of the market at the early board on the transactions of Monday was equal to 3@4 ℔ cent. on New-York Central, and Galena and Chicago; and 1@2 ℔ cent. on Reading, Rock Island, Hudson, Toledo and Michigan Southern. The highest sale of Erie was at 22 ℔ cent. against 19⅞ yesterday morning, and 21½ yesterday afternoon. The orders at the Board appeared to be well distributed through the list, and about 20,000 shares of the active Railroads were taken. The market subsequently fell off on the Street, and its tone reversed at the close of the Second Board, when the advance of the morning was pretty much lost by the opposition made to the rise by the short sellers. New-York Central left off 83@83¼ ℔ cent.; Erie, 20⅞@½; Rock Island, 70; Reading, 43@43¼; and Hudson, about 27 ℔ cent. The contest for the rule of the market, since yesterday morning, has been unusually determined, though not uniformly successful on the part of the speculative sellers, a good many of whom were not prepared, from their position in Stocks, as taken since the turn in March, to have prices go up. The leading Bulls inside the Board, on the other hand, seem, for the moment, to be content to let the market take its course upon the outside orders which have been brought in by the recent heavy decline, and aside from the money market and the news from abroad, other ground for this confidence is felt in the gradual withdrawal of stocks out of brokers' names. The certificates of nearly all the active shares employed on the Street have been very considerably reduced within the past few weeks. At the same time this is no serious bar yet to very free sales for the decline while the preponderance of numbers among the brokers is against the rise; so that altogether the movement on the Exchange promises, through the Spring and perhaps the early part of the Summer, to be one of unusual interest and varied excitement. There was an advance to-day of 2 ℔ cent. in Iowa State 7s, and 1 ℔ cent. in La Crosse Land Grants. The Milwaukee Sentinel reports that:

> "The La Crosse road will be open to Tomah, 40 miles this side of La Crosse, in a few days. The tunnel of 1,200 feet to connect the Lemon Weir and La Crosse valleys has been let to Mr. Cameron, of Geneva. Walworth County, and the work upon it commenced. The line follows the valley of the La Crosse River, and the grading is generally light. The work in this last section of the road has already been commenced, and the contractors intend to reach La Crosse with the iron rail by next October."

In regard to the March traffic on the Erie line, our neighbor is probably at fault in speaking of $75,000 as the falling off from the same month in 1857. The gross receipts then, although about $600,000, settled up, officially only $482,893, owing to the large balances due to connecting roads west of Dunkirk. The character of the business last month—there being little or no accumulation of freight-charges West—will give the Company on $525,000 gross receipts, nearly as much actual traffic over their own line as last year, and under greatly reduced pay rolls.

The receipts in March on the Rock Island Road are now stated to be $55,000 from last season. The Michigan Southern, $158,581, against $212,542 in March, 1857. The new Directors of the Panama Railroad Company are: Wm. H. Aspinwall, Edwin Bartlett, Henry Chauncey, Henry A. Coit, Samuel W. Comstock, Edward Cunard, Wm. Fellowes, David Hoadley, Governeur Kemble, Theo. W. Riley, John Steward, Jr., Isaac Townsend, Wm. Whitewright, Jr. The new members are Messrs. Edward Cunard and Theo. W. Riley.

The following is Tuesday's business at the office of the Assistant-Treasurer:

Receipts	$183,539 74	Balance	$5,499,471 83
Payments	143,937 06

The receipts include $33,000 from Customs.

The export of a hundred thousand bales in a single week is about the heaviest business ever recorded. At present prices it is equal to an exchange of full $5,000,000, Great Britain, it will be seen, is almost the exclusive buyer this week. In regard to crop estimates, the circular of Mr. W. P. Wright, of to-day, says:

> "There is nothing new on this subject to report; with the lessened receipts at New-Orleans, as compared with those for many weeks past, although still materially in advance of the corresponding weeks last year, there is a disposition to lower the estimate, and some writers insist that it cannot reach 3,000,000 bales. By telegraph we learn that an overflow of the Red River had taken place, but at this early period of the season no damage to the new crop was apprehended."

Finance and Business in Boston.

From the Boston Post, April 6.

The Boston Banks now hold above eight and a quarter millions of specie, in addition to a very large amount of New-York funds. There is, however, no special change in the rates of money. But the fact of heavy accumulations everywhere is more and more generally appreciated, and as time rolls on, without bringing any unfavorable change to the market, these accumulations are fast coming to be considered as almost permanent ones, even by the most cautious and timorous. The consequence is that the banks, while retaining their ordinary business rates of 6@7½ ℔ cent., are rapidly realizing the idea that they ought to lend large sums on special negotiation, at 4 or 5 ℔ cent. As yet, however, not much has been done in the banks below the legal rate. Outside loans, however, are daily made at 5, though 6 ℔ cent. may be stated as the current Street price for prime paper. But the demand for money everywhere is extremely light, and although general business is slowly but decidedly improving, there is nowhere exhibited any considerable spirit of enterprise, or even of speculation. Both the money and stock markets, indeed, are dull enough.

Among the "fancy" stocks, "Pewabic" alone has been stiff and active since our last. As recent purchases on time are taken up, it will be apt to advance, irrespective of intrinsic merits. The stock has lately received an upward impetus, perhaps, from the statements of parties from the Portage district. The story is that the stamp machinery will be in operation by Autumn, and that in 1859 it is safe to estimate a product of 800 tons. The stamp stuff of the "Pewabic," also, is described as the richest ever discovered on Lake Superior. We give these things as we hear them.

Most other copper shares are heavy. "Cliff" has been depressed by the announcement of the offer of a large quantity of the stock at auction. "Minnesota" is dull, for no particular reason except, perhaps, the exceeding heaviness of ingot copper, involving the probability of a further decline. "Rockland" has fallen off before some moderate sales from parties who seem to be buying "Pewabic." "Isle Royale" flickers between 75c. and $1, although the assessments come in handsomely. None can doubt that a mine that has actually sent to market about 700 tons of copper in the last three years, can be made to pay something, at least, under judicious management. The only question is, can such management be obtained? The facts seem to warrant the conclusion that it can be, after a while.
